They Still Call Him 'Chief'

By RICHARD JACKSON
TORONTO — John Diefenbaker is measuring support while an impatient Conservative convention waits out the long day in hope — if not real expectation — that tonight he will give it some sign on the leadership. (See also P. 16, 18) But the word from inside the royal suite where he broods in closely-guarded privacy at the top of the Royal York, still is that he will keep the convention guessing.

So in his speech tonight, which he said Wednesday would be directed to both the party "and the nation," intimates don't expect him to declare himself on the leadership.

Except to indicate in hard, uncompromising terms what kind of a party he believes it should be... fighting "to the bitter end" the two-nations concept.

And then, as he has said publicly already, "leave it to the delegates to decide" — decide, that is, on what kind of a man they think should lead it.

He actually doesn't have to decide himself, for around the party's headquarters in Ottawa, he still appears to be in control.

There may be wheeling and dealing in the back rooms, and the party's pandemics may be making all manner of power pacts — but to all outward appearances "The Chief," as they all still call him, seems himself to be calling an awful lot of the shots.

Ford Goes Out

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers union struck Ford Motor Co. at midnight Wednesday night in a contract dispute that could make 159,000 workers in 25 states.

The walkout, first at Ford since 1961 when the UAW struck for 14 days, came at the expiry of a three-year contract and followed rejection by the company of an 11th-hour union proposal to let a third party set the wage terms of a new agreement.

REASONS LISTED

Chief Ford negotiator Malcolm L. Ross labeled the proposal "clearly unacceptable." In a letter delivered to the UAW bargaining team at 11:30 p.m., he listed off numerous reasons, including rejection of union demands for profit and productivity figures. Even if the company had accepted UAW President Walter P. Reuther's proposal for binding arbitration after seven hours of study, the move would have come too late to avoid extensive strikes in the eastern time zone.

ALREADY OUT

Thousands of workers already had walked off the job in anticipation of the nationwide strike. The midnight deadline usually means Detroit time and shutdown of Ford plants across the U.S. was not expected to be complete until midnight came in all time zones.

Although current contracts at General Motors Corp. and Chrysler Corp. also expired at midnight, they were expected to continue to operate.

NO TALKS

Denton told a post-midnight news conference no bargaining sessions are scheduled for today and that there probably wouldn't be any more this week.

Men immediately walked out of the vast River Rouge plant west of Detroit where Ford makes about 50 per cent of its cars.

SPORTS CAR DRIVER DIES ON BLENKINSOP

A Victoria man was killed shortly before 1 a.m. today when his late-model sports car went out of control and sheared off a utility pole in the 3700-block Blenkinsop.

The man, trapped in the wreckage, was pronounced dead at 1:05 a.m. by Dr. J. E. Peterson, whose home at 1200 Judge Place was near the accident scene.

Saanich police withheld the name of the driver until the next of kin could be notified.

Electric wires which ripped loose when the car snapped off the pole, snaked across the car's body. Hydro workers were forced to cut power to nearby houses.

Blenkinsop residents brought to the scene by the noise of the crash stood in silent groups as Saanich police and firemen worked to free the car and driver from the weight of the pole and electric wires.

Peter Garrison of New York, visiting with friends on Blenkinsop, said it sounded like a bomb had gone off, and after that all that could be heard was the sound of the car's jammed horn which was finally disconnected by police.

De Gaulle Asks Polish Help To End War

WARSAW (AP) — French President de Gaulle, unanimously welcomed on a six-day visit to Communist Poland, declared Wednesday night the French and Poles may help together to put an end "to the bombing, the fighting and the presence of foreign forces in Vietnam."

Two Planes Missing

VANCOUVER (CP) — A search was launched late Wednesday night for a B.C. Airlines Cessna 185 overdue at Sandpiper, Queen Charlotte Islands. Only the pilot, unidentified, was aboard.

In another incident, a Piper Cub float-equipped plane, "belonging to Skyways Air Services, Abbotsford," was reported missing after practicing landings at Pitt Lake.

The 78-year-old de Gaulle, a persistent critic of U.S. policy in the French Indochina, spoke at a state reception after crowds totaling nearly 500,000 acclaimed him on his arrival and in a 45-minute motorcade from the airport into Warsaw.

De Gaulle said France and Poland could help in carrying out the Geneva agreement on Vietnam "so as to revive this region which is so horribly crushed."

Poland, Canada and India are members of the International Control Commission set up after the 1954 Geneva accords divided Vietnam into North and South following the ousting of the French.

Mica Dam Contract 'Canada's Largest'

VANCOUVER (CP) — A $136,261,544 contract for construction of Mica Dam on the Columbia River system was awarded Wednesday to a five-company group headed by an American firm.

B.C. Hydro, in charge of the multi-million-dollar project under a Canada-U.S. treaty, described it as the largest single contract ever awarded in Canada.

The consortium is headed by Guy F. Atkinson Co. of San Francisco and includes the Arundel Corp. of Baltimore, L. E. Dixon Co. of San Gabriel, Calif., Dillingham Corp. of Canada Ltd. of Vancouver and Commonwealth Construction Co. of Vancouver.

Mica is the last and largest of the three Canadian storage dams on the Columbia system. The contract awarded Wednesday does not include the underground powerhouse which will generate 2,000,000 kilowatts of electric power for B.C.

The Atkinson Consortium bid was the lowest of four opened by Hydro Aug. 30. An all-Canadian consortium submitted a tender of $169,535,515, slightly above $143,355,000 by another Canadian-American group. The highest was $170,814,466.

Hydro said construction of the Mica Dam, 85 miles north of Revelstoke, will begin later this year following diversion of the Columbia River, probably about November.

At Least 20 Dead In Arab Fighting

ADEN (Reuters) — At least 20 persons have been killed in heavy fighting during the last three days between the two rival extremist Arab nationalist groups in South Arabia.

Sources for the National Liberation Front (NLF) said Wednesday the battles were fought between it and the Front for the Liberation of Occupied South Yemen (FLOSY).

Tuesday, some 4000 tribesmen of the South Arabian federal army were alleged to have joined forces with the Egyptian-backed FLOSY fighting attacking NLF units reported to be still in control of Dar Saad, a community of 14,000 inhabitants.

Greeks Denounce Visiting Monarch

MONTREAL (CP) — Thousands of Montrealers of Greek origin, shouting "Down with the king" and "The king must go," milled around the downtown Chateau Champlain hotel Wednesday night.

Inside the building were King Constantine and Queen Anne-Marie of Greece, who earlier in the day received a formal welcome from crowds at Expo 67 when they took part in Greece's national day ceremonies.

Lead Flies Over Army Rule

ATHENS (UPI) — Police waded a gun battle in Salamina with alleged communist opponents of the Greek military regime, police sources said Wednesday. One policeman and three civilians were reported killed.

Leading the parade were marchers carrying the Canadian maple leaf flag, the Quebec fleur-de-lys and the blue-and-white Greek flag.

Also carried along above the throng was a huge cardboard caricature of the king, with an iron cross symbol drawn on his crown and a dollar sign in his hand.

Meanwhile, in front of the nearby Windsor hotel, another group of about 300 Greeks demonstrated quietly in support of the royal couple.

U.S. Politicos in Uproar

Romney Repeats Brainwash Charge

By ROBERT S. DOWMAN
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Michigan Gov. George Romney was embroiled in a white-templing political flap Wednesday over his statement that he was subjected to "brainwashing" by U.S. officials on a 1965 trip to Vietnam.

Instead of retreating under a hail of Democratic fire, the Republican presidential contender lambasted the Johnson administration with new charges of giving Americans inaccurate information about the war.

In one of the bluntest attacks he has made on the administration over Vietnam, Romney told reporters here: "If you want to get into a discussion of who's brainwashing who, I suggest you take a look at what the administration has been telling the American people. The information has not been accurate."

Democrats vied with each other in denouncing Romney, with the sharpest thrust coming from Vermont's Gov. Philip H. Hoff, one of eight other governors accompanying Romney on the 1965 trip. "It is outrageous," Hoff told reporters in Washington, "that he would lead us to believe he was that naive or that he was brainwashed... to say he hasn't enough ability to make a judgment on his own as a presidential contender. It's the old McCarthy tactic of guilt by innuendo. I think it's kind of striking."

A number of governors who made the trip with Romney, including GOP Gov. John Chafee of Rhode Island and some other Republicans agreed they were not brainwashed. Chafee told the Associated Press he found the briefing he received "interesting, constructive and helpful."

Step by step, this is how the uproar developed:

On Monday, Romney, while criticizing U.S. involvement in Vietnam as unnecessary, said in a pre-recorded broadcast in Detroit: "When I came back from Vietnam I had just had the greatest brainwashing that anyone can get when you go over to Vietnam."

When Romney returned from the Vietnam trip, he made a statement to the effect that the United States was morally right to be in Vietnam.

Whooper Silences Guns

REGINA (CP) — The air is quiet around the north end of Last Mountain Lake 70 miles north of here — with the exception of the birds.

The presence of one bird silenced the guns of several hundred hunters who had planned on taking advantage of the early sandhill crane season.

An estimated 25,000 sandhill cranes and an equal number of ducks, seemingly aware of their safety, swirled through the air Wednesday with their guest — a whooping crane.

Five days ago, the big white bird, an adult of undetermined sex which is one of about 50 left in the world, was spotted in the sandhill crane management area at the lake.

The area was closed to hunters Saturday. The usual nesting ground for whooping cranes is nearby 1,000 miles northwest of here in Wood Buffalo National Park which lies on the Alberta-Northwest Territories border.

Sew-Sew Answer For Top Needler

SHORT TAKES: With a little careful co-operation the school board and the Equus-risk council could remove their most persistent critic and put her out to pasture for the entire winter.

It all began when Equus-risk ombudsman Pat Dunlop saw the bright brick-red shorts of school board member John Porteous through a stack of canned goods at a super market.

Mrs. Dunlop raised her grocery cart around the aisle and confronted the school board man with her problem.

Mrs. Dunlop wants to have Equus-risk high school opened up for a sewing class this winter. To make the thing go she needs 20 women who like to sew and who want to sew better.

If Reeve Ray Bryant can sign up a few and school board chairman, Peter Burn can line up a few more then Mrs. Dunlop will be out of action hounding and tucking for months.

The adult education department is sending a man around to Mrs. Dunlop's for a cup of tea and a bit of sponge cake on Friday to try and make a deal. Perhaps Mr. Porteous will get a new pair of shorts.

BAY WHISK: Remember way back when the Jaycees bought the Emily Carr home and provided great things in the way of retirement?

It must be among the projects that they have forgotten about. The garden looks a mess and the place really needs a touch up.

The Carr home looked a lot better before it was "saved." But then so many things look a lot better before they were "saved."

ODD QUESTION: James White is a new, mystic and clairvoyant. He is quite a remarkable fellow all around. He was at Cliff Clarke's McPherson Theatre Restaurant for a spell but did not like the public atmosphere for his work so he went back to Vancouver. He took the ferry. Mr. White does not walk on water, but then even Mr. Bennett takes the ferry.

Mr. White, despite his powers of the mind, still marvels at the ways of women.

He says that 75 per cent of the women who come to him for advice, regardless of age, finances or social status ask the same question. WILL I marry again?

NEW PROGRAM: The city's greatest drummer for humanitarian causes, Mrs. B. Levitz Packard, who else fills the role, is on the march again. Mrs. Packard is trying to find homes for three small boys. Usually it's toughest to place problem children or non-Europeans, but this time the Family and Children's Service can't find homes for three white youngsters.

Mrs. Levitz Packard writes that the service has just put a permanent foster homes plan into effect so that the children can grow up as part of the family they live with.

She describes the three children now needing homes this way. "John, 18 months old, is fair-haired with skin to match. He has blue eyes and is a most affectionate child. He is a lively, healthy boy who is discovering and learning something new every day."

Richard has a cute elfin face and is a lively, responsive boy. He would reward any family who open their hearts to him. Gordon is an appealing baby with brown curly hair, big blue eyes and a fair skin.

The whole foster care program will be discussed at an open meeting at 7:30 p.m. today in Spangorhouse, 1881 Cook Street. Before you no, make up that spare bed. Mrs. Packard is very persuasive.

TV SCENE: This week's issue to TV Guide has a dandy. It says Occasional Wife has been replaced by Accidental Family. All we need for game is for them to run that old movie Wages of Sin on the late show.

Brief Holiday

Prisoner Takes Annual 'Leave'

STONY MOUNTAIN, Man. (CP) — George Leclerc was captured Wednesday night, 26 hours after he made an anniversary escape from Stony Mountain Penitentiary.

Police took the agile convict into custody in northwest Winnipeg.

Leclerc's previous break was Sept. 1 last year when he and nine others fled Headingly provincial jail. That time, Leclerc got as far as Gary, Ind., in a stolen plane piloted by Kenneth Leishman, who was awaiting trial in a $383,000 gold bullion robbery.

The Stony Mountain escape took place at 9:15 p.m. Tuesday.

With another convict, the 27-year-old Leclerc went over an 18-foot wall and fence on the northeast side of the penitentiary yard. His companion was caught immediately but Leclerc was faster.

"This man just disappeared into the dark," said deputy warden Joe de Varennes. "He could go just like a deer."

Leclerc was serving a seven-year term for the 1966 escape, breaking and entering, theft and confining a person without legal right — the latter charge arising out of the previous break.

Lung Collapse Often Caused By More Serious Condition

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: I have had four pneumothoraces, or collapses of a lung, in two years. What causes this illness? Could smoking bring on these attacks or make the condition worse?—MRS. E.D.

This is due to the rupture or breaking of a bleb (or sort of blister) on the surface of the lung. Like a balloon, the lung collapses.

This is not necessarily a serious matter although it can be frightening. With rest, the small hole heals and the lung resumes its normal function. In many instances, the air must be removed by thoracotomy — a tube being inserted through the chest wall to reduce pressure and ease breathing.

With many people, this problem occurs once and is not repeated. When it happens repeatedly, there may be some underlying condition causing it — one study found some other lung condition present in half of such cases.

Among them were the presence of other blebs in the lung; asthma, chronic bronchitis, emphysema, and scarring from various past infections or other damage.

Examination and X-ray of the lungs will ascertain whether such is your case.

Smoking may not bring on pneumothorax, but it would be an aggravating factor and therefore harmful if any of the mentioned conditions are present.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a green woman and all of a sudden have acquired a taste for burnt matches. I strike a pack of matches and eat them one by one. Is this harmful and dangerous?—L.H.

People have been poisoned by ordinary match heads. What happens in the burning process, I don't know, but I would assume that the burnt ones could be harmful, too. I suggest you develop a hunger for something known to be safe.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a girl, 12. I am about five-foot-one, weigh 95-lbs. please tell my measurements are 25 1/2-35-32.

My mom and dad think I'm skinny but I think I need to lose about 5 to 10 pounds and get my waist down to 22. What is your opinion? Sign me—HELE.

Judging from the statistics you give me, I think all of you are fussing about nothing. You are fine. Your measurements are in an ideal ratio for a good figure.

Trouble Seen

Vote Team Satisfied

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson's team of election observers returned from Vietnam Wednesday with hardly a squawk about the fairness of Sunday's balloting. But many warned of rough times ahead for the newly elected government in Saigon.

The observers were unanimous in praising the South Vietnamese government for conducting a fair and responsible election in the midst of a war.

One of them, Baltimore's Republican mayor Theodore McKelvin, even disclosed he had planned to urge U.S. withdrawal from Vietnam but, now that he had seen the election, wanted to "rethink" his position.

FREE AS POSSIBLE
William Young, Negro president of the urban league, said he has gone to Vietnam with "some skepticism and cynicism about the election process" but returned "terribly impressed" and "completely satisfied that this was as free an election as possible for those people to have."

Several of the observers forecast difficulties ahead for the new government of President Nguyen Van Thieu and Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky, the military leaders who have been running South Vietnam for the last two years.

Because the Thieu-Ky ticket got only 34.8 per cent of the vote, "it is obvious that this government is going to have difficulty in forming a broadly based civilian government," Eugene Patterson, editor of the Atlanta Constitution, said.

Anti-War Campaign

Democrats Voice Dissent

LOS ANGELES (LAT) — Solicitation of contributions for a campaign to back congressional candidates in every state opposed to the Vietnam war was begun Wednesday by Dissenting Democrats, headed by actor Robert Vaughn.

It described itself as a "political organization" of Democrats whose aim is to elect candidates who will work to end U.S. participation in the war.

"We hope those candidates will be Democrats," said an fail, should there be a contest in which a Republican who is for peace runs against a Democrat who is not, we will support the Republican."

The announcement said the group plans to run an advertisement on Nov. 11 in 23 major cities, totaling 1,000,000 signatures. It would repeat the content of an advertisement published in the Los Angeles Times June 23 bearing the names of 8,000 Democrats.

The response to this was "overwhelming," according to DD.

REALISTIC PLAN
Wednesday's announcement said "we must reactivate the functioning powers of our Congress."

"To do this, we must be realistic," it said. "Congressmen are elected officials. They want to be re-elected officials. They will only vote for those things that are supported by their electorate."

"From this point forth we will withhold our funds from the Democratic Party."

"Instead, we will support the

Catholic Bloc Storm Signal

S.A.T.-GON (AP) — Roman Catholics won heavily in the Senate elections in yesterday's runoff elections in South Vietnam, leading political analysts to speculate Wednesday that the political future may be stormy.

Nearly-complete returns from Sunday's election showed three predominantly Catholic 10-man slates won seats in the 60-man

Senate, making Catholics the largest bloc in the new body.

Analysis saw storm signals in the fact that there has always been bad blood between the Catholics and Buddhists.

WELL ORGANIZED

The well-organized Catholics, a strong anti-Communist element in South Vietnamese politics, number about 2,000,000 of South Vietnam's 17,000,000 people.

Most of the people are Buddhists or born to Buddhist families, but they are divided by factions.

The Catholics, who represent both native southerners and northern refugees, cannot be expected to be a monolithic bloc in the Senate, but will be more unified than other blocs.

NOT CLEAR

How this will affect the president and vice-president-elect, chief of state Nguyen Van Thieu and Premier Nguyen Cao Ky, is unclear. But it is thought that President-elect Thieu would benefit more than Ky if their political rivalry comes out into the open.

Thieu, a southerner, converted to Roman Catholicism before he married. Ky, a northerner, is nominally a Buddhist but says:

"My parents were Buddhists. I am too young to make a decision."

THIEU DENOUNCED

Angered by Thieu's signing of a charter which recognizes another Buddhist sect of the official Buddhist church of the country, South Vietnamese militant Buddhists recently denounced Thieu as a traitor.

Most members of the new Senate are strongly anti-Communist and are not prone to peace negotiations with the Viet Cong and Hanoi without strong prior guarantees.

Sweep Kayos Cong

SAIGON (AP) — Action quickened along the northern front of South Vietnam Wednesday. A major new U.S. ground operation swept south of Tam Ky, the provincial capital where South Vietnamese defenders crushed a 2,500-man Viet Cong guerrilla attack in pre-dawn darkness.

North of Tam Ky, U.S. marines were having North Vietnamese regulars who were chewed up in a blazing battle Monday.

KEY AREA

Tam Ky is in the five-province 1st Corps area, where Communist troops are expected to try an offensive soon.

Associated Press correspondent John Lengel reported from Tam Ky that the main objective of the guerrilla attack was the jail with 800 prisoners, 500 of them Viet Cong.

Spain Set to Resume Talks on Gibraltar

LONDON (UPI) — Spain said Wednesday it is ready to resume negotiations with Britain over Gibraltar.

The statement came only four days before Gibraltar residents vote on whether to join Spain or maintain ties with Britain. It is believed British action on the Spanish request for talks will have to wait until after the Sunday referendum.

Jobless Upset Labor

Ally Blasts Wilson

BRIGHTON, England (CP) — Britain's Labor government got a stiff slap in the face Wednesday from its main ally, the Trades Union Congress representing 8,000,000 workers.

After a series of lesser kicks at the government's ally, the TUC at its annual conference gave massive support to a resolution deploring economic policies of Prime Minister Wilson's administration.

It was particularly critical of government intervention in collective bargaining as a solution to economic problems and of deflationary measures which it claimed involve the maintaining of a large pool of unemployed workers.

REBELLION BEATEN

The block-voting tally was 4,883,000 for the resolution to 3,507,000 against. It would have been higher except that iron-handed Lord Carron, head of the powerful Amalgamated Engineering Union, overrode a rebellion in his delegation to cast the union's 1,000,000 votes against the resolution.

Besides administering a rebuke to the government, passage of the resolution represented a jolt to the TUC's general council, which had been wrestling for days over how to subdue mounting union criticism of the Wilson government and which opposed the critical document.

Earlier in the conference, the council managed to sidetrack delegate action on a recent announcement of sharply higher rates for government-supplied electricity by issuing a critical statement of its own.

OTHER RESULTS

Two other rebuffs were delivered to the government Tuesday. One was a resolution calling on it to disassociate itself from United States policy in Vietnam. In this case also, the congress overrode an appeal

Have you tried this happy marriage of flavour?

Can Gilbey's London Dry and ginger ale live happily together?

The answer is a blissful yes. Gilbey's London Dry has a perfect balance of flavour for all mixed gin drinks. The flavour of some other gins is either too strong—or utterly tasteless. But Gilbey's dry flavour has been an international favourite since 1873. Quite a long time.

Gilbey's London Dry lives in perfect harmony with the lively taste and effervescence of ginger ale.

Divisive Theory

THE CONFUSION OF CANADIANS over what has come to be known as "the two-nations concept" in this country will be the more confounded by the apparent support of the theory by the Progressive Conservative Party's sub-committee on policy.

This group is part of the national convention's platform-planning organization, and while it can do no more than make recommendations its decision is significant.

It voted overwhelmingly—by a margin of eight to one—for acceptance of the two-nation theory.

It recommends these constitutional changes:

Canada is and should continue to be a federal state.

Canada is composed of the original inhabitants of the land—that is to say the Indians and the Eskimos—and "two founding peoples (deux nations) with historic rights, who have been and continue to be joined by people from many lands."

Then the sub-committee adds: "The constitution should be such as to admit and encourage the full and harmonious growth and development in equality of all Canadians."

There is an inconsistency here. What is meant by "the historic rights" of the two founding peoples, the controversial "two nations"? Is this not an intimation of discrimination? If it is, then it is not a conception compatible with the suggestion of "growth and development in equality of all Canadians."

The essential purpose of our confederation was the unification of the provinces, the former colonies, as a national entity. There was no thought of the perpetuation of a duality, nor can there be, now or ever, in nationhood.

It may be true that "deux nations" can be translated as "two peoples", but these antics in semantics, as someone has termed them, do not alter the fact that the acceptance of such a theory is divisive.

It was the Liberal leader, Mr. Lester Pearson, in his policy of appeasement towards Quebec, who first adopted the "two nations" formula. No doubt with the same political aspirations in mind, the New Democratic Party leader, Mr. T. C. Douglas, made it a part of his propaganda. It was generally conceded to be a clever vote-catching gimmick. And that is what it remains.

It should be beneath the dignity of men with pretensions of statesmanship to make such manoeuvres.

All of the peoples of this country, of whatever origin, are entitled to retain and cherish their inherited cultures. From them they can make an acceptable contribution to the Canadian mosaic. To suggest that only those of French or English—more properly British—origin have any special status is a denial of democratic principles.

If we are to survive as a nation it must be on the basis of complete equality for all.

And Forever Higher

THE COST OF THE 1968 MODEL automobiles will go up about $100 on the wholesale level, according to the president of Chrysler Corporation, which means that for the consumer the increase will be considerably greater.

Increased costs, including some materials—but not steel and certain man-made upholstery fibres—have gone up, and the car manufacturers are faced with massive new wage demands.

However, the industry's main explanation for the higher prices is that the new safety features, now compulsory in the United States, have added most of the $100 to the unit price.

If the safety measures are instrumental in reducing the horrible toll of dead and injured on the roads, not to mention the property damage aspect, the money will be well spent.

On the other hand, the continuing spiral of price increases is to be deplored in that it is now at the stage when it is getting out of control, and seems no longer to be contained by mere competitive pressures.

The extreme bullishness of investors in equity stocks of a growth nature at a time when profit margins are being squeezed is not a normal stock market action, but it is to be construed as a desperate effort to find an effective hedge against inflation.

The theory that the holding of growth stocks is the antidote to rising prices and inflation has merit, but it only holds good as long as the economic atmosphere is sufficiently congenial to enable the plans to ripen. The disease of uncontrolled inflation could kill the crop before the harvest can be reaped.

In Foreign Fields

THE YOUNG ENGLISH POET, Rupert Brooke, who himself served in the Middle East, wrote in a memorable verse that if he should die in a foreign field this would be a corner "that is forever England."

Death did come to him in that area of conflict, and his was a sentiment that could be echoed of all those who paid the supreme sacrifice while fighting to save the lands wherein they fell.

President Nasser departs from this concept of the burial places held in deep respect by civilized peoples.

In what is no less than an unpardonable act which can only be motivated by malice, the Egyptian president has demanded of the Commonwealth War Graves Commission that it remove the graves of 3,000 war dead from a cemetery near Alexandria. These are servicemen of Britain, Australia, New Zealand, India and Pakistan, who gave their lives in the Middle East in two world wars.

Gratitude alone should fill Gamal Nasser and cause him to pause. Had it not been for the forces in which they served and died, and the victories that were theirs, he would not today be the president of his country. They saved Egypt from a conqueror.

The War Graves Commission concedes that Nasser could insist on the removal, but it is using its best endeavors to prevent the graves being disturbed.

Elsewhere, where servicemen lie in foreign fields their graves are places of pilgrimage and reverence, and citizens of the countries concerned frequently place flowers in tribute of thanksgiving.

If President Nasser carries out his intention he will earn universal scorn. Men who die gallantly in battle deserve to be left at peaceful rest.

Letter to Britain's Wilson . . .

Warning of Vietnam-Type War in Africa Seen in Dramatically Delivered Missile

By THOMAS LAND from London

PRIME MINISTER Harold

Wilson has been handed the first letter — since Rhodesia's illegal declaration of independence — from African leaders imprisoned in the colony.

The document, smuggled out of Salisbury prison and delivered at 10 Downing Street here, is of considerable importance as it seems to place full responsibility on the shoulders of the British government for the bloodshed now spreading in Southern Africa. The methods employed by both the black invaders from the North and the white defenders of the South alarmingly resemble the Vietnam struggle.

With Mr. Wilson is studying the lengthy document — written by the Rev. Ndlovu, a South African leader, and Mr. Robert Mupfema, the leader of the banned Zimbabwe African National Union (ZANU) — well trained and fully armed guerrillas are crossing over to Rhodesia from neighboring Zambia openly to challenge the rebel regime.

Like North and South Vietnam, Zambia and Rhodesia were at one time a single country. We have never declared between the two. Rhodesia rebelled against British rule in November, 1965, in order to deprive indefinitely the black majority of voting rights.

In fact, South African army officers acting as "observers" are actively participating in the fighting.

It is an open secret that the current spurge of guerrilla warfare in white-controlled Southern Africa has forced Rhodesia, South Africa and Portugal to seek formal military ties.

One important reason for the present flare-up in the fighting is the decision taken by ZANU and its rival organization, the Zimbabwe African People's Union (ZAPU) to stop waiting for British intervention in the Rhodesian independence crisis and to resort to the force of arms.

There are indications that much of the fighting may well be directed from a Rhodesian prison.

Mr. Frank Ziyambi, the chief London representative of ZANU, has presented me with evidence to prove the authenticity of the document sent to the British prime minister. "I cannot tell you our means of communication through the prison walls," Mr. Ziyambi told me, "but let me assure you that I am in regular contact with my leaders."

Let the document speak for itself.

"There are clear signs," it tells the prime minister, "that you have come to the conclusion that now is the time to carry out the terms of a pact you and the Rhodesian government made in 1965 before the rebellion. It is a matter of public record that your government made it plain to Prime Minister Ian Smith and his government that if they should seize independence, they could do so with the full assurance that you would not use military force to crush the illegal regime."

It goes on: "We have in the past charged that Britain was shirking her responsibility to the African people of Rhodesia, but your government has always denied it. We believe that you are now engaged in an exercise to legalize the present illegal independence and thus confer on your fellow whites the right to mass into enemy.

only produce bank-note results which the other parties are bound to turn down," says the letter. "It is not the first time that we are calling for a conference on our problem and we see no reason to tire of doing so."

And, reviewing the last 20 months since the Rhodesian rebellion, the document charges: "You refuse to use force although your economic sanctions have stopped. Your

Israel's Problem

Explosive Tension Grips Gaza Strip

By SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT from London

OF all the areas now occupied by the Israeli Army, the tense and isolated Gaza Strip shows the most signs of military occupation and open hostility by the Arab population.

In this tiny area on the border between Israel and Egypt, 430,000 people are crammed into 140 square miles — 70 per cent of them are refugees. UNRWA (United Nations Relief and Works Administration) says only about 4,000 or 5,000 have left or disappeared from the zone since the recent war.

The majority of the refugees are Bedouin or farmers from Beerseba and southern districts of former Palestine, who came into the Gaza Strip after the 1948 war and partition. Their politics are pro-Nasser and they reject any form of co-operation with Israel. Egyptian television is still watched nightly throughout the Strip.

Attempts by the Israeli army to induce some of the younger refugees to migrate to the West Bank of the Jordan, also now under Israeli occupation, have so far failed, even though transport and lands for resettlement were offered. Where these lands were is not clear, since the returning refugees from East Jordan appeared destined to reoccupy the camps they vacated in June last on the West Bank.

On the West Bank the Israeli authorities have so far controlled things with a comparatively light rein, but in Gaza they have ruled with a heavier hand. In the town of Gaza I came upon the ruins of an enormous villa almost levelled with the ground. Until three weeks ago this was the home of a prominent Gaza citizen, Theodor Shehada, who is now undergoing a seven-year prison sentence on charges of hiding arms in an out-house in his garden; his two sons, aged 19 and 17, were jailed for four and two years. In Gaza, possession of arms is punishable by death.

The town suffered some damage in the fighting, which was fierce, but many public and private buildings such as the teachers training college, Gaza secondary college and schools, including UNRWA installations, appear to have been damaged and looted after the fighting.

Colonel Veltcher, spokesman for General Mottagur, Israel's military governor of the region, told me that his men were now busy repairing school buildings in order to get primary classes open next month. There are 100,000 schoolchildren in the Strip. No doubt the refugee children attending UNRWA schools will get back to their desks, but for institutions such as Gaza College, which has been run privately by the locally well-known Tarsul family since 1949 and has over 1,000 secondary students, the problem is difficult. All funds are still frozen in local banks and teachers unpaid. Moreover, many teachers have left, while those of Egyptian nationality are held prisoner by the Israelis.

Colonel Veltcher told me the Israelis had seized no money in Gaza banks and that all funds had been taken by the departing Egyptian authorities. Resettlement, he said, was a political not a military problem. I understood that the authorities had proposed to replace absent teachers by Arab-speaking Israelis — a solution which could only be imposed by force in Gaza's present mood.

A few miles south of the southern frontier of the Gaza Strip trouble flared up recently at the Egyptian town of El Arish which, in addition to the local population left behind after hostilities, now includes some 5,000 Egyptian prisoners. Conditions in the town and prison camps have seriously deteriorated over the past weeks owing to unemployment, cash being cut off, and food supplies dwindling.

On August 19 as busloads of sightseers, organized by the Israeli government, arrived at the gates of El Arish, barriers blocked the entrance, demonstrators shouted protests and the Egyptian flag was hoisted. A general strike was declared in protest. The Israeli army imposed a 24-hour curfew while paratroopers carried out house-to-house search and arrested some 200 men. According to my information, no arms were found.

An Egyptian schoolteacher told me the strike had nothing to do with arms but was only in protest against intolerable living conditions. Among the prisoners are at least 300 Egyptian civilian employees and teachers. In response to an urgent appeal the Gaza townspeople despatched a truckload of emergency rations to them and sent an urgent request for intervention by the International Red Cross.

The Israeli army asserts that most El Arish prisoners are due for repatriation and that it is the Egyptian government which is holding this up. However, I have been told that the prisoners are being held as hostages pending the release of Egyptian Jews detained in the UAR since the hostilities. Some Egyptian teachers, I learned, have been transferred from the El Arish camp to a permanent prisoner-of-war camp in Northern Israel.

Spain's Argument Refuted

By JAMES FAWCETT

IN their claim to Gibraltar the Spanish government has called in aid the policy and declarations of the UN on decolonization. The Spanish government says that, since Gibraltar is a colony of the United Kingdom, it is a physically part of the Spanish peninsula, Spain is, in effect, the country which is colonized, and therefore, the decolonization called for by the UN means for her the recovery of the separated territory of Gibraltar.

The Spanish government invokes here paragraph 4 of the famous UN Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples 1960.

Paragraph 4 reads: "Any attempt aimed at the partial or total disruption of the national unity and the territorial integrity of a country is incompatible with the purposes and principles of the Charter of the UN."

The reasoning of the Spanish government, and its invocation of Paragraph 4 seems logical at first sight, but if we look at them more closely we see that they entirely missp not only the Declaration of 1960 but the policy and practice of the UN on decolonization.

The Declaration of 1960 was the product of long and often controversial debate in the General Assembly, and of carefully considered drafting, and it must be read as a whole. It is not open to a country to select only one of its seven paragraphs, as Spain is attempting to do, as a particular purpose, and to ignore the others. The key to understanding the Declaration as a whole is in its second paragraph which reads:

"All people have the right to self-determination, by virtue of that right they freely determine their political status and freely pursue their economic, social and cultural development."

Now it is of course true that self-determination for a community usually involves independence; and most peoples, not self-governing, have opted for independence when given the choice of exercising their right of self-determination. But this is not necessarily the case. A community, particularly if it is small in population or in territory or both, may exercise its right of self-determination by choosing a form of association with the mother country in which it continues in some ways to be dependent upon it, so the community may become in large part self-governing, but its continued association with the mother country may in certain fields—for example, economic development, financial aid, representation abroad, defence—involve dependence upon it.

That self-determination, rather than independence as such, is the basic requirement both of the UN Charter and the Declaration of 1960, is shown in the UN approach to Rhodesia, in which the UN more than once demanded that the United Kingdom should not grant independence to Rhodesia without full political rights for the African majority, in short, independence without self-determination was not acceptable.

Again the UN has repeatedly recognized various forms of association, falling short of full independence, as being consistent with the principle of self-determination, and we find General Assembly resolutions approving the association of Puerto Rico with the United States, of Bahrain and the Netherlands Antilles with the Netherlands, and of Greenland with Denmark.

Fusion, Rather Than Fission, Challenge to World Science

MAN is closer than ever to controlling thermonuclear energy — the force that powers hydrogen bombs and the sun.

Harnessing fusion, the opposite of nuclear fission, remains a scientific dream, but physicists have made steady progress in recent years. The National Geographic Society says. Though fusion is already producing electricity for human use, it doesn't have the advantages of fission. This type of power will use a fuel abundant in the oceans — deuterium or heavy hydrogen — and it will not have lethal radioactive wastes.

Curiously, energy can be produced either by splitting atoms or by joining them together. In the fission of uranium, one-tenth of 1 per cent of the mass (weight) of the atom becomes energy when the atom is split. In fusion, two hydrogen atoms combine to form one helium atom, converting one-half of 1 per cent of the mass into energy.

Fusion occurs in plasma — a substance that is neither solid, liquid, nor gaseous. Plasma, like gas, is fluid and very tenuous, but plasma particles are not at all like the relatively tranquil molecules of a gas. A plasma forms when a substance such as hydrogen becomes so hot that the atoms smash one another to bits. The result is an angry swarm of electrons and positive ions.

The electrically charged particles attract and repel one another while flying furiously in all directions. Under proper conditions, a plasma can flow like a liquid; it may conduct electricity better than copper.

Most of the material in the universe — including the stars and many loose particles in space — exists as plasma, the so-called "fourth state" of matter. Only in exceptional places, as the earth with all its life, does matter settle down into solids, liquids, and gases.

Plasmas are created on earth, however, in the visible path of a bolt of lightning, in neon and fluorescent lamps, electric arcs, the exhaust of jet and rocket engines, and, terrifyingly, in the fireball of a hydrogen bomb.

The goal of current research is to control thermonuclear reactions in superheated plasmas. But physicists must find a way to confine hot plasmas long enough for sufficient fusion reactions to produce usable energy.

A substance with temperatures ranging up to 200,000 degrees Fahrenheit cannot be kept in an ordinary container. Instead, physicists are using "magnetic bottles," chambers that employ magnetic forces to prevent the particles from escaping and making contact with the air.

More and more is being learned about the behavior of plasma in a magnetic field. So far physicists have no workable technique for converting fusion power to everyday use, but they are highly optimistic of eventual success.

Wartime Censorship in a Democracy

To write without censorship again will seem strange after spending three months in Israel before, during, and after the recent Middle East war.

Officially, Israeli censorship is never political or diplomatic censorship. But in Israel's unique situation, the dividing line between security and diplomacy or politics can be very indistinct.

Most of the censors who have the rank of lieutenant in the army intelligence corps are young university students — some only 21 or 22 years old. Between them, they speak an incredible number of languages. They work very fast.

As Israel has a passionate national belief in press freedom, the personal relationship between correspondents and censors is friendly most of the time. In Tel Aviv.

On the war's first evening, I was in Jerusalem in the Israeli parliament — it is called the Knesset — while it was heavily shelled by Jordanian artillery. When that dramatic parliamentary session ended, Jerusalem was in black-out darkness lit only by the bright flashes from guns and exploding shells.

Robbie Sable, a 26-year-old English-born law student, is working his way through university as censor at the Jerusalem government press office. From the Knesset on Jerusalem's far outskirts, he drove me the long way through shell fire and machine-gun fire, but because of the blackout without lights. In the government press office, the electricity supply had been destroyed by the bombardment, and correspondents huddled around a few oil lamps. When I handed Robbie my story, he regretfully cut out a triumphant quote from Israel's founding father David Ben-Gurion that the whole Egyptian air force had been destroyed.

"B. G. told you this personally," said Robbie. "I know that it's true. But until it's released officially, you can't send it."

While I was still writing, Robbie came into the press room to look for me. "Some more rewriting for you," he shouted cheerfully above the battle noise coming through the blacked-out windows. "I was just told by phone that you can write all you want about the Knesset shelling, because we've knocked out the guns which did it."

About 36 hours and a lot of fighting later, I stood in the morning sun beside the Temple Wall in the Old City of Jerusalem, surrounded by the paratroopers who had taken it. For the first time after 1871 years, the Temple Wall again belonged to the Jews.

The history-loving censor

Robbie Sable came to the Wall. Beaming, he promised: "Today I will not cut anything from your story."

When Israel took the Syrian heights, an armored brigade accepted me as combat correspondent.

Next day, when I arrived dirty, unshaved and exhausted in Tel Aviv, the censor killed this part of my story. Angry, I walked into the office of the chief censor — Hungarian-born 39-year-old Major Tibor Jones, who speaks six languages, and has university degrees in law, political science, and military history.

I told him I wanted to report the war's aftermath in Israel, and did not want to be beaten on my story by the first correspondent who left Israel and could write without censorship. "You can't stop me from reporting and commenting about the tremendous efforts of the Israeli government to save Russia's face," I said.

Smiling, Major Jones replied: "Perhaps you understand now why we don't want foreign correspondents in the front lines."

But he telephoned for new instructions, and then told me I could send my story. "For reasons you will understand, we are denying what you heard," he said.

Seventeen days later — after Russia had broken off diplomatic relations with Israel — Prime Minister Levi Eshkol publicly admitted that Israel had tape recordings of the Russian commands I had heard.

In July, I handed the censor a story about the political fight of Defence Minister Moshe Dayan, and said apprehensively: "I know you won't like this." Dayan had told correspondents in Gaza that Israel would annex the Gaza Strip — and the official army spokesman had stated very officially that Dayan had NOT said it.

The young censor passed my story without alteration, and remarked slyly: "What I don't like is not your story, but that this happened. I know what Dayan said, and the army spokesman's denial is ridiculous. Dayan shouldn't have said it, the army spokesman shouldn't have denied it, but you are right to report it."

Israelis Target Of Soviet 'Wit'

By PETER WORTHINGTON

Russians have a delightful sense of fun, but for the Soviet press, humor is no laughing matter.

The press tends to use it rather as a cavernous cleft: To smash, crush, pulverize.

The proper style of wit and satire — the subtle but telling thrust — is as yet unknown to the Soviets, or at least unpracticed.

These days Soviet humor is being hurled at Israel. It has about as much finesse as a Nasser speech, or a Pravda joke. Irresistible, Trud, Red Star, the satirical magazine Krokodil as well as Pravda and all the other organs of Soviet thought, are busily sneering, ridiculing and hammering at Israel.

It seems that Israel has deeply and inexcusably offended the Kremlin by its humiliating shelling of the Arabs last June.

All this is hardly surprising. What is disturbing:

● The vehemence of the anti-Israel attacks.

● The resemblance of the Soviet campaign to the old Nazi techniques of attacking Jews.

Understandably this has made Soviet Jews uneasy and has raised the ire and anxiety of institutional Jews.

So far the Soviet attack is "political" and not blatantly anti-Semitic. It's aimed at Israel and not at individuals.

But the tastelessness and flavor of the diatribes are extreme, even by the Soviet's venal standards.

A recent edition of Krokodil describes the Israeli Defence Minister as: Moshe "Adolovitch" Dayan — the "Adolovitch" suggesting that he is Hitler's son, or heir.

Dayan's black eye-patch is shaped like a skull, and an Iron Cross in the Krokodil cartoon engenders memories of the SS. Krokodil insists: "His soul is akin to Adolph's ... yesterday's slayers of Auschwitz furnaces are applauding Dayan ... for the right-wing, his eye-patch is as symbolic as Hitler's hair across the forehead and the brittle moustache."

Krokodil suggests that if he continues, Dayan may also end up as a charred corpse "like his ideological daddy."

The Soviet says a wax museum on Coney Island has, significantly, replaced Hitler's replica with one of Dayan; they joke that President Johnson is sending a black eye-patch to Gen. Westmoreland in Vietnam.

Pravda has a cartoon showing Dayan giving a ball salute, and booting Hitler off a pedestal.

It's the overtones of Nazism that makes the present Soviet anti-Israel campaign so disturbing.

Just as the cartoons of Nazi Germany depicted Jews as hook-nosed uglies being cursed and murdered by American Big Business, so do Soviets today, presenting hook-nosed Israelis under the protection of the American military.

The style bears a striking resemblance to the vicious anti-Semitic ones that appeared in Nazi Julius Streicher's newspaper Der Sturmer.

More than ever, Israel is now regarded as a bastion of U.S. imperialism.

Attacks has recently been broadened to include not just Israel, but international Zionism.

Fears are that this anti-Israel, anti-Zionist campaign may become suddenly anti-Semitic — something that has not happened yet.

Soviets regard Zionism as a political creature, while Judaism is strictly religious and racial. The Soviets make no secret they are anti-Zionist — and any Soviet Jew who harbors active sympathies for Zionism is living precariously.

The warning is clear: To be pro-Israel in the Soviet Union today is to be anti-Soviet — and everyone knows, or should know, how risky that is!

Although there have been booklets against Soviet Jews because of Israel, these seem more the result of individual hostility than they do state policy.

No Liberals Need Apply To Rap Brown

By PAUL COATES from Los Angeles

Allow me to present my credentials. I was a card-carrying Liberal way back when the term was applied to anybody who had a reasonable point of view. But where's a Liberal supposed to join up in this tragic war between the races?

He should be able to find a place in the ranks of people who are fighting for racial equality. But it's an odd military tactic of this particular war that some of the combatants are pushing their natural allies out of the front lines against their will.

"Liberal" used to be a dirty word to the forces commanded by George Wallace. Now apparently it's a dirty word to the forces commanded by H. Rap Brown as well.

This field general who leads the black power struggle jumps all whites from Gerald L. K. Smith to Budd Schulberg as "honkies."

Since I'm white, I suppose I qualify as a "honkie." I don't mind the label. I just deeply resent being linked with segregationists. That's now where a Liberal stands, despite Rap Brown's frenzied fulminations.

But the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee under his guidance, is determined to lead the American Negro down the path of self-destruction. The organization disdains any other Americans who offer help in its battle to gain for the Negro what is rightfully his. It has already dismissed white Liberals as hypocrites and Negro moderates as Uncle Toms.

Near, in a SNCC newsletter, the advocates of black power have violently attacked the Jews, a minority group which traditionally is sympathetic to the Negroes and which many times has translated that sympathy into action in the Deep South. The most monstrous time was when Andrew Goodman and two other boys were murdered because of their participation in a Mississippi civil rights protest.

In a two-page spread, the SNCC letter accused Israel of committing atrocities against the Arabs. It links SNCC's black nationalist policies with the Arabs' plight and both to a worldwide struggle of colored peoples against whites. It refers to "The Third World — Africa, Asia, Latin America, American Indians and all persons of African descent."

A sketch accompanying the article shows Nasser and a Negro with nooses around their necks, the rope held by a white hand emblazoned with a Star of David and dollar sign. A black arm, entitled "Third World" holds at the rope with a machete marked "Liberation Movement."

That's the SNCC's way of presenting a memorial to Andrew Goodman.

Detergent Havoc Worse Than Torrey Canyon Oil

By DOMINIC HEARLE from London

The aftermath of the Torrey Canyon shipwreck, which last March poured 117,000 tons of oil into the sea, has yet to be evaluated scientifically.

A team of scientists from Durham University is shortly to make public the first analysis of damage. It will show, in their field at least, that the 2,000,000 gallons of detergent used in the great clean-up caused more havoc than the oil itself.

The Durham investigation, led by Dr. David Bellamy, lecturer in plant ecology, precedes two other important studies due out this autumn — the Zuckerman committee white paper on the total consequences, and the Plymouth report, from the city's marine biology station, on the purely biological results.

Although Bellamy's examination deals with only one aspect of the damage, its conclusions will foreshadow the findings of the other two.

Bellamy's reason for getting involved in the Torrey Canyon research was that by chance one of his graduate students, David John, had already conducted a survey of Devon and Cornwall beaches before the disaster. With the help of local diving clubs, last summer he had carefully charted the growth of seaweed round the coast. This provided Bellamy with a direct comparison for measuring the effect of pollution.

Three coastal zones which are identified by the types of seaweed and sea life they support were examined. Almost immediately, his underwater diving teams produced one unexpected result: in the third zone, where the red seaweeds are nourished by the blue light of the spectrum, the oil and detergent had been so diluted by the sea that the kelp forests had remained quite unharmed.

This was the more surprising since the Torrey Canyon incident had occurred at the exact moment when the kelp was in the "springtime" of its annual development; when the seaweed was putting forth new growth fronds. In other words, the seaweed was caught in its most vulnerable state and still it was not affected.

Bellamy investigated the amount of dilution in detail in a more-or-less enclosed cove near Tor Mear, where to rid the rocks of oil 2,000 gallons of detergent had been pumped in. The Durham teams' mathematics proved that the sea had diluted the resulting emulsion at least 10,000,000 times.

It was in the Splash Zone, and more particularly, in the Beach Zone, that the damage had been done. The detergent, and not the oil, had killed off the limpet life which normally "grazes" the rocks clean. As a result, many of the Cornish beaches, at the rock line, have turned green with an uncontrolled spread of seaweed. In Seaton Cove, for example, the seaweed, there was a 21 per cent coverage of seaweed with a count of 8 to 11 limpets per square yard. On beaches covered with oil alone there was a 37 per cent coverage and a 6 to 9 count. On those hit by both oil and detergent — there was an 86 per cent coverage and a limpet count of less than one.

In a matter of days, says Dr. Bellamy, the delicate balance of millions of years of evolution had been destroyed. What will happen next?

Young limpets are now returning in shallow water in the affected areas. When they reach the new seaweeds, says Bellamy, they will gorge themselves, thrive and multiply. This in turn will attract the birds who will pick them off in a banquet. It may take years of oscillation either side of the natural balance until the equilibrium shattered by the tanker is restored.

Melvin Belli Prepares Amazing Brief:

Bullet Didn't Kill, Doctor Did

By ANTHONY TERRY from Stuttgart

Melvin Belli, the colorful California attorney who defended Jack Ruby and Caryl Chessman, and who has a reputation for never taking on a brief under a $1,000,000 fee, is appearing in a U.S. Army court martial here which may make medical-legal history.

With British Professor Francis Camps as his leading expert medical witness, Belli has taken on this case without a fee "just for the publicity." His aim is to gain an acquittal for U.S. Army Sgt. Charles Wood, accused of murder, by proving that gross negligence by German hospital doctors was the primary cause of death and not a shot fired by the sergeant.

The flamboyant lawyer is subjecting the stolid six-man "jury" to a brilliant display of Hollywood-style forensic skill. When the case opened this week, he disclosed that, with the aid of expert medical-legal evidence, he will seek to prove that a bullet, alleged to have been fired by Wood which hit a drunken German in a Gasthaus brawl last Christmas Eve, would never have been fatal if doctors had not been in Belli's words, "grossly, inexplicably and inexcusably negligent."

Harassed by Belli in the witness box, the doctor who operated on the victim of the shooting admitted that he had carried out only a superficial examination and a minor operation. He failed to discover the real trajectory of the bullet which entered the man's abdomen slantingly and emerged on the other side.

The German, who never noticed the bullet enter his body during the brawl, demanded to be allowed to go home after hospital treatment, but he died in the hospital three days later of peritonitis, after a full-scale emergency operation by another doctor had failed to save his life. The German medical evidence showed that the surgeon thought the perforation caused by the bullet emerging was a knife wound and had merely sewed it up.

Belli, pounding the desk in court, claimed that doctors had failed to take a white blood count and discover whether the victim's intestines had been penetrated and had merely pumped him full of cortisone and penicillin until the Christmas holidays were over. He told the court that modern medical science can save 90 per cent of such cases nowadays — and that the German doctors and not Sgt. Wood should be in the dock.

Prof. Camps will testify next week that there is at least a 90 per cent chance of saving a life after bullet wounds of this type if the patient is correctly and speedily operated on, but his survival chance has dropped to only 50 per cent eight hours later. Every eight hours of medical inactivity afterwards contributes further to sealing his death, Camps will say.

Legal arguments hinge on whether the German doctors were experienced enough to realize that something more might have been done medically, and Belli agreed that a young fledgling doctor could not be held legally responsible. But Dr. Mallender, the German doctor, confirmed under cross-examination that he had treated thousands of bullet wounds in the Second World War.

Belli attended a medical congress in Ghent, Belgium, last week with Prof. Camps and he gave notice there that he was on the warpath against doctors who refused to testify in court to medical malpractices which would incriminate their colleagues.

Still Chief

candidates trooped to the royal suite Tuesday and again Wednesday where he was holding what had to be political court.

All were frank in saying they had no idea of his own personal leadership plans.

For all they admitted to knowing, he might be going to run — at least through a first and even perhaps a second ballot.

Or it was entirely possible that he could publicly, but far more likely privately, indicate his support of his choice of the nine.

One of them, former Labor Minister Mike Starr was quite candid about it.

He "very much hoped" The Chief would support him, for it would "mean such a great deal, be so important."

So one by one they came, Nova Scotia's front-running Robert Stanfield, Manitoba's now-trailing Duff Roblin — as the public opinion polls rate them — and former cabinet colleagues Alvin Hamilton, Donald Fleming and the hopeful Starr.

All denied they had been "summoned" — but in fact they had been invited to drop in.

The more formal of them, Robert Stanfield, said he had "come to call on Mr. Diefenbaker."

Duff Roblin had popped by "to pay my respects."

Alvin Hamilton had "happened up," simply to "talk over old Saskatchewan times."

Mike Starr said he visited to "chat with the Chief."

Donald Fleming — he dropped by twice — had paid the call to "say hello."

Nobody so much as peeped about what The Chief had said to them.

But a key Conservative from the Kitchener-Waterloo-Galt-Guelph industrial quadrangle who had marched up to the door, knocked, and was immediately admitted, perhaps shed a little light.

The Chief, he confided, was "sounding them out."

But on what? "Policy, you know — where they stand on the two nations business — and other things as well."

Things like what kind of support he himself has? "Could be."

If the Chief didn't go for the leadership, on whose brow would he place the laurel wreath?

"Alvin Hamilton's."

But other supposed "insiders" insist it's Donald Fleming.

Evidence of this might be seen in the support that known Diefenbaker loyalists are giving the former finance minister.

And not just moral support — but the kind that counts — a lot of good hard work.

The cynical argue that The Chief "likes" Fleming because he feels — or has been assured — that he could continue as leader while his former finance minister found and won a seat.

But the problem of a seat for Fleming has all but been solved.

He would run in Grey-Bruce — the good, solid safe Tory seat — from which former Conservative whip Erik Winkler is resigning to run in the Ontario provincial election.

De Gaulle Trip

the Oder-Neisse frontier between Poland and Germany, saying the present borders of Poland, dating from the defeat of the Nazis in the Second World War, "are and must stay where they now are."

West Germany does not recognize the frontier because it gave a large slice of Germany to Poland.

Officials, the public and the Communist press treated De Gaulle's visit as an historic reunion with France, for centuries Poland's comrade-in-arms.

De Gaulle was moved by the thickly-packed waving and cheering crowds as he stood erect in the open sedan taking him into Warsaw.

Thousands cheered when he stepped from his plane wearing his familiar brigadier-general's uniform.

Office and factory workers flashed placards, some greeting de Gaulle and the people of France, some condemning "U.S. aggression in Vietnam" and "militarists of West Germany."

Wladyslaw Gomułka, first secretary of the Communist party, President Ochab, Premier Jozef Cyrankiewicz and other Polish officials greeted de Gaulle at the airport.

"Your visit here is an important political event," Ochab declared in an airport speech. "Poland and France, linked through long centuries of friendship and co-operation, often fought arm in arm for common humanitarian aims."

BARBARIC INVADER

"The tradition of Franco-Polish brotherhood of arms in the period of the struggle for life and death against the barbaric Hitlerite invader has been deeply engraved on the hearts of both our nations."

The Polish president said de Gaulle's visit and his talks with Polish leaders were important "at this moment when the development of events in the international field is giving rise to growing anxiety."

De Gaulle said in response that the purpose of his visit "is to strengthen our relations, economic, scientific, technical, yes, but it is also to direct our actions concerted toward the most essential problems, security and peace."

'We Are Of One Mind'

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada can and will resolve its internal problems of national unity "without intervention from outside," External Affairs Minister Martin told a dinner audience of diplomats, government officials and Ottawa businessmen Wednesday night.

Speaking at a banquet marking the opening of the new Skyline Hotel, Mr. Martin said that all Canadians, whether of French, British or other background, will work together to create "a Canadian community."

Switching quickly to French, he added: "Nous sommes d'accord. We are of one mind."

Brainwash Uproar

claims to have been brainwashed, as the governor put it. "Not only by the generals but also by the diplomatic corps over there."

With utter relish Bailey thereupon demanded that Romney apologize to Lodge and to Gen. William C. Westmoreland, U.S. commander in Vietnam, "for implying that these men would try to mislead him about the war."

Meanwhile Romney, arriving in Washington Wednesday evening for a committee meeting of the national governors' conference, reiterated that he had been brainwashed.

He said he had not got a "complete and balanced picture of U.S. policy."

On Tuesday the fur began to fly in all directions as these developments piled up in rapid order.

In Des Moines, Iowa's Gov. Harold E. Hughes, a Democrat, who also was on the 1963 trip, said: "I saw no evidence of any so-called brainwashing. I think it (the war) was factually and impartially explained. I don't feel we got any colored pictures."

In Saigon U.S. officials expressed irritation over the Romney charges.

At a press conference in Washington Romney charged that while visiting Mr. Johnson in Texas in 1966, Secretary of Defence McNamara gave out misleading information about the size of future draft calls and about the likelihood of a tax increase.

"The people have been told repeatedly," the governor said, "that with just one more step we would be able to handle the situation... that we would have the boys home by the end of the year. That hasn't happened."

The Pentagon within a few hours fired back a blast at Romney, alleging that his statement "grossly distorts the record."

"It is the governor who is giving inaccurate information to the American public," a defense department statement said.

It began to look as though McNamara, who spent much of 1964 haggling over Vietnam with Barry Goldwater, the Republican presidential nominee that year, might be in for another round of political brawls leading up to next year's election.

Chinese Star Buried Quietly

Reprisal Assassination

HONG KONG (LAT) — Fearful of possible Communist violence, the British colonial government Wednesday secretly buried a Hong Kong radio personality murdered by fire bomb two weeks ago for making anti-Communist gibes on his popular Chinese-language programs.

The bodies of Lam Bun, 37, and his cousin, Lam Kwong-hoi, 28, were taken from a funeral home to the Royal Hong Kong Jockey Club in driving rain.

Police stopped traffic on the road behind the main grandstand while officials and mourners passed the open coffins. The public was kept a quarter of a mile away.

Half an hour later the bodies were taken across the street to the hillside St. Michael's Catholic cemetery, where a brief service was conducted in a small chapel.

Followed by Lam Bun's widow and two of their three children and about a dozen other relatives, the coffins were carried to the graves on a narrow terrace. Relatives and officials representing the Colonial government each threw two handfuls of earth on the coffins after they were lowered into place.

The entertainer and his cousin were ambushed by thugs disguised as road repair workers on their way to the Hong Kong commercial radio station from their Kowloon home Aug. 24.

The gang halted the car, threw fire bombs inside and reported to have persuaded the family to accept a private ceremony.

Leftist newspapers defiantly gloated over the assassinations and officials were afraid of bombing or other violence at an open funeral.

Lynching Banned In China

HONG KONG (UPI) — Red Guard supporters of Chinese Party Chairman Mao Tse-tung have regulated control of the city of Canton, it was reported Wednesday. Travelers from China and correspondents in Peking said fighting continued on other areas.

The Hong Kong Times said fighting had spread along the railroad line between Canton and the British colony, with several train stations falling into the anti-Maoists.

Polish and Yugoslav correspondents in Peking were quoted Wednesday as saying Mao's followers in the Chinese capital were trying to crack down on the spreading violence by forbidding lynching, looting and civil war.

Pollution

Mills Fight Back

SEATTLE (AP) — Industry spokesmen sharply criticized the validity of scientific analyses contained in a federal-state report charging eight pulp and paper mills with the pollution of Puget Sound at a conference on the report Wednesday.

The conference was a continuation of one initially called in January, 1962, by the federal water pollution control administration and the state pollution control commission. The conference was called after Washington sought federal assistance to have the eight mills comply with state water quality recommendations.

TONS OF WASTE
The 450-page report, published last April, said the mills discharge 50,000 tons of solid waste into Puget Sound annually as well as 72,000,000 gallons of untreated wastes.

The report concluded fish and shellfish were harmed and recreational uses of the sound were hampered.

Donald J. Benson, executive secretary of the Northwest Pulp and Paper Association, said industry conclusions differed substantially with the results of the report.

SERIOUS ERRORS
"Although many of the basic field data presented in the report are useful, questionable laboratory experiments and inadequate analyses of the data lead to some serious errors in conclusions," Benson said.

He questioned the use of laboratory-controlled conditions rather than natural environment to show the effect of sulfite liquor on oyster larvae.

Federal and state fisheries officials, state game department representatives, and health department officials appeared to endorse the report's commendations.

Power Fights Gnaw At Two Arab States

From UPI, AP
Power struggles in Syria and Egypt took the Mideast spotlight Wednesday.

Informed sources in Beirut reported a bitter power fight raging in Damascus, with the Syrian army backing moderates against the radicals now in power.

The possibility of intervention by other Arab leaders and of another bloody upheaval in the coup-ravaged nation could not be ruled out, the sources said.

MORE TO COME?
And from Moscow came reports the arrest of 50 Egyptian officers in a plot to overthrow President Nasser was part of a power struggle likely to continue.

The statement was published in Pravda following two days of talks between Egypt and the Soviet Union on Mideast.

The official Soviet Communist party newspaper, quoting Egyptian journalists, said the coup attempt by Nasser army commander Abdel Halim Amer was "just the beginning."

Some evidence of this may be gathered from a Cairo announcement Wednesday that War Minister Amin el Howeihi has been put in charge of Egypt's intelligence network. The dismissal of military intelligence chief Salah Naar was reported Tuesday.

The authoritative Cairo newspaper Al-Ahram claimed he was removed after an extensive Suez Canal, an Israeli spokesman deviated from its original duties.

In other Mideast developments Wednesday:

- Egyptian and Israeli forces exchanged fire for about two hours near Jerusalem on the Suez Canal, and Israeli spokesman announced.
- It was the second flareup within three days in the canal region.
- Egypt blamed Israel for setting off Monday's seven-hour naval and artillery battle across the Suez Canal.
- A United Nations truce observer team reported that Egypt shot first.

Topic: Oil

ALGERIA—(UPI)— France and Algeria Wednesday opened talks designed to smooth over differences over their joint exploration of Sahara oil riches. The talks followed Algerian complaints that Algerian firms were not getting their due share of prospecting and drilling jobs.

Leaving

William Tymchuk, Island district representative for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind during past four years, leaves Victoria this month for new post in Calgary. He will become CNIB executive officer for southern Alberta and his successor is John Hoskins of CNIB's Vancouver office. Both men are blind.

Blaze Battle

Showers Aid Fighters

VICTORIA (CP) — Overnight showers that wetted British Columbia's two serious forest fires gave firefighters an edge in their battle to control them Wednesday.

Forestry officials here reported the fires at Shuswap Lake and Lumby, near Kamloops, were quiet and firefighters were busy erecting guards to contain them.

The 45,000-acre blaze at Shuswap Lake, the biggest fire in the province in six years, is being fought by a reduced force of 350 men as a result of cloudy and cool weather conditions.

OTHER FIRE

The other fire, which has consumed nearly 50,000,000 board feet of prime timber and burned over 10,000 acres, is being fought by 250 men.

A B.C. forest service spokesman said the two fires have been the most expensive of the year in terms of firefighting and timber loss costs.

He said an "unofficial" estimate shows the fires in the province this year have burned over 200,000 acres but "it is difficult to accurately assess damage at this stage."

NOT AS BAD

"At the same time, the service has evidence that the province will not be faced with heavy losses as in other recent bad fire years."

"In 1958, fire fighting costs went over $4,500,000 but the area burned exceeded 2,000,000 acres. In 1961 more than $4,000,000 was spent in fighting fires which burned over 1,250,000 acres."

Estimated costs to combat fires this year total $4,500,000.

QUICK ACCESS

"The success in holding down fire damage has been attributed to the fact that protection personnel were able to get to most fires quickly when they were in their early stages," the spokesman continued.

"Improved organization, detection and communications along with extensive use of aircraft were vital contributing factors to this success."

Salmon May Suffer

VANCOUVER (CP) — Federal and provincial fisheries officials said Wednesday that this year's onslaught of forest fires in British Columbia may have a long-term detrimental effect on the province's fisheries resources.

E. C. Vernon, of the provincial fish and wildlife service, said the effect of the fires is more of a long-range proposition but it "is not something to get into a panic about."

Forbes Boyd, a federal fisheries biologist, said the fires "will have an effect on the environment of salmon but whether this will be an important effect, we can't be sure."

LESS DESIRABLE

He said that chemicals contained in ashes from fires can cause deterioration in the quality of the water in which the salmon spawn and new salmon are hatched.

Mr. Vernon said that trout could be harmed if a large fire develops in a watershed area. "The removal of the forest cover in the watershed of a stream which supports trout can affect them through the increased erosion which occurs and the silt which finds its way into the stream making it less desirable for sports fish."

Undercover Man Marijuana Buyer

A 20-year-old youth who sold an ounce of marijuana to an undercover RCMP officer for $20 pleaded guilty in central magistrate's court Wednesday to trafficking marijuana.

Terrence George Latrelle, 200 Penwell, was remanded in custody until Sept. 15 for a pre-sentence report.

Constable Daniel Cressly told the court the undercover officer went to the Penwell address on the evening of Aug. 31 in an attempt to buy some marijuana from a person first named Terry.

"Subsequently, a greenish plant-like substance was purchased," Constable Cressly said,

Court Parade

"The accused was interviewed Tuesday morning and readily admitted he had sold an ounce of marijuana to the undercover man for $20."

Latrelle had nothing to say in court.

A man who threw an empty wine bottle through a plate glass window of the Government Street liquor store Tuesday night was fined $50 and ordered to pay $165 in compensation.

Robert Cameron, 35, of 550 Johnson, pleaded guilty. Constable Lynn Kraebling said Cameron had been drinking.

Cameron, asked by Magistrate William Gutter why he did it, said: "I guess I had two quarts too many."

Henry Mutter, 2605 Sooke, was sentenced to 14 days in jail and had his licence suspended for three months when he pleaded guilty to impaired driving. Mutter drove in the centre and on the left side of Happy Valley Road Aug. 11 and almost had two head-on collisions, court was told. He admitted a previous conviction for the same offence.

John Fleming, 163 Olive, was remanded until today for commitment for trial on a charge of theft over $50. The Crown closed its case in the preliminary hearing Wednesday after leading evidence that Fleming was stopped while driving a stolen car Aug. 20.

Fleming, represented by Alan Bigelow, has elected trial by judge and jury.

The preliminary hearing of a theft charge laid against Frederick Williams, 773 Goldstream, was waived by lawyer Alan Bigelow.

Williams is charged with stealing a brown leather suitcase, the property of Charles Sutton, Aug. 11. The bag was valued at between $50 and $55. Williams will be tried by judge and jury and will be formally committed for trial today.

A youth who led Saanich police in a high-speed chase on Craigflower Aug. 27 was given a suspended sentence and placed on a $500 bond for 18 months for criminal negligence.

Richard Mullaney, 16, also known as Marsh, of 2520 Prior, pleaded guilty last week. His licence was suspended for three years.

John Altken, no address available, will be sentenced today for stealing a $40 ring from a friend Aug. 25. Altken pleaded guilty to theft under $50.

Constable Murray Mac Arthur said Altken stayed a night at a friend's place and took the ring when he left. He later pawned the ring for $5.

John Boulter, 1718 Fort, was fined $300 and had his licence suspended when he pleaded guilty to impaired driving. He gave a breathalyzer reading of 21 per cent when stopped Aug. 13.

Franciscus De Groot, 743 Pear, was fined $40 for being a minor in possession of alcohol.

Pitchers Get Hairly, Too, When Joe Grabs Bat

By JIM MURRAY

The first look you get at Joseph Paul Torre, you're tempted to wonder if the rope broke, or if there was a circus train wreck near by.

He's a nice-looking fellow, it's just that there's all this hair. If he went without shaving for a week, you wouldn't be able to find him. Lots of guys in baseball shave twice a day, but Joe has to twice an hour.

"When Joe was born," his teammate says, "they didn't give him a razor, they gave him a razor." "They put Joe on the shaving commercials," another said, "but, by the time he finished shaving the second side of his face, the first had grown in again."

When he first came behind the plate in the big leagues, the bench jockeys were ready. "Ump," they wanted to know, "is that a mask or a muzzie?" "Hey, how'd they ever get you down from the Empire State Building?" "Mighty Joe Torre," others called him.

Fortunately for the game, Joe

Torre is as placid as he looks ferocious. "Joe," said Maury Wills once, "could snap my head off with his thumb and finger, but when I stepped on his ankle once, all he said was 'ouch!'"

Joe just may be the most valuable player at the moment in the game, but he annually gets just a few more MVP votes than a platooned banjo-hitting outfielder, the impression is abroad that Joe is a good-hitting catcher in a game where the manager would rather have a good catching hitter. The weight of the evidence would seem to bear out, though, that the trouble with the Atlanta battery is 60 feet, 6 inches away from catcher Torre. It doesn't do you any good to call the right pitches if you haven't got anybody who can throw them.

All the average manager asks of a catcher is that he not weigh more than he hits. When Torre first came up, he would have had to break all of Hornsby's records to keep up with his avoidroids. He was the only guy on the team who could get stuck in the whirlpool bath, and the chest protector looked like a napkin on him. He could run just faster than a soap bubble, and he not only couldn't beat out any inside-the-park home runs, he had trouble with the outside-the-park ones. "Joe," said Bobby Bragan, "legs out outfield hits all the time."

Joe decided he didn't want to be the first man in his family to bat his way into the big leagues and then eat his way to Richmond. He began to order the lean meals where you didn't even need a toothpick. Today, he doesn't look emaciated, but the whirlpool doesn't overflow any more when he lets down into it, either.

When a player can hit .315, knock in 101 runs and crack 38 home runs, as Joe did last year, more than any catcher in the history of the game, he doesn't exactly have to be Gabby Hartnett behind the plate. He can almost be Gabby Hayes.

But in the Atlanta ball park you have to be a good catcher. The distance from home plate back to the stands requires a lunch break, and a passed ball can be as big a disaster as an inside-the-park home run. The staff also has more knuckle artists than a marbles tournament. A knuckler is as about as easy to catch as a bottle fly on a hot day.

Catching frequently corrodes hitting talent. Only a handful of catchers in history have batted over .300, knocked in over 100 runs and hit 30 or more home runs in a season. Torre has done it twice. Until he came along, it had been 10 years since any catcher had. Only 27, Joe is only 110 home runs shy of Roy Campanella's lifetime record for catchers, a record he may break by the time he's 30. One record no one will ever take from him — most shaves by a catcher, lifetime, season, game, or, even, innings.

IT BEATS ME

By Jim Tang

There were two pleasant surprises for the fans who showed at Royal Athletic Park last Saturday to watch Victoria Steelers make their home debut in the Western Division of the Continental Football League. One was the starting improvement which saw the Steelers, 23-3 victims of Orange County Ramblers in their league opener in Anaheim the previous Saturday, outplay the favored Seattle Rangers to merit their 19-10 triumph.

But that wasn't what most fans were talking about after the game. Even more pleasant as far as they were concerned, and more significant to the future of professional football here, was the calibre of play.

Perhaps that shouldn't have been all that surprising but fans do need convincing, and those who were there last Saturday saw for themselves the evidence that the Steelers can be a good football team in what is a good football league.

Whether Victoria will give the kind of support needed to keep a franchise here is something that has to be given two seasons to get an answer but Victorians at least know now that it is worth keeping.

The Continental is a full-blown professional league, and every effort is being made to run it professionally. It has no pretensions of eventually becoming another major league but it feels, and with cause, that it can provide excellent football as a proving ground for the National and American Leagues. The future of the league almost certainly depends on the acceptance of this concept by the major leagues. With salaries and other expenses what they are today, the Continental league can continue to exist only if the big leagues are willing to use it as a farm league and subsidize to an extent by paying the major portion of the salaries of the players they believe could develop into major league performers.

It certainly makes sense for major league clubs, who normally keep from 10 to 30 players on "tax" squads, which means paying stipends without getting their players game experience. And it is a necessity for the Continental league, which has already lost two clubs in the Eastern Division and one in the Western Division this season because there was no way revenue could match outlay.

Although the Continental league might try to counter-act this with a salary limit, there is no way to enforce it. There will always be someone wanting to win badly enough to pay more for players than they can afford. And this makes financial losses of the winners as well as those who know they can't afford what it would cost to be a contender and take a beating at the box office because they lose too many games.

And often, as in the case of the Toronto Rifles, who departed the Eastern Division Tuesday, it means not completing the season.

The Rifles, of course, were competing in a metropolitan area against an established major league club but they certainly had grandiose ideas. Reports have it that they signed the since-released Jackie Parker to a $17,500 coaching contract and that their budget for the season was somewhere in the vicinity of $300,000.

Failure of the Rifles was inevitable, and it will be inevitable in a league such as the Continental is designed to be for every club which cannot keep its operational costs somewhat below $150,000. Even then, it will take solid community support to keep a club solvent.

And that's what we will have to produce if we want to keep professional football here. I can only guess at what it will cost the Steelers to operate this season but I doubt if $100,000 will cover it. With only one league game at home, this is more than a formidable task this season. It's probably impossible.

However, I'm certain that the Steelers didn't expect to show a profit in their first season and only want crowd assurance that they can build the kind of support they need for another season.

Getting this assurance is, of course, largely up to the Steelers. They are marketing a product and their success depends on producing a good product and then selling it.

They are closer to one than the other. Somewhat late in getting started in producing the product, their selling has suffered from a bit too much of the thinking that it's up to Victoria to show them that Victoria wants professional football.

However, while their selling job hasn't yet earned passing marks, they have given considerable evidence that they can come up with a product that should sell. We can show them on Sept. 23, when they play the tough San Jose Apaches here, that we will buy good football. But selling is still necessary and the Steelers, now that Don McKeta seems to have put together a competitive football club, should devote considerably more of their energies in making it a Victoria football team. It's seldom that selling just means making certain that box-office booths are staffed.

Argos to Re-Arm With Old Rifles

TORONTO (CP) — The collapse of Toronto Rifles of the Continental Football League is providing Toronto Argonauts with a supply of fresh talent.

Duncan Team Blanked 2-0; Wings Beaten

Victoria North Americans start out Duncan Luckies, 2-0, and Dave Duncan Shell outlasted Seattle Wings, 8-6, Wednesday in Esquimalt Summer Hockey League action at the Sports Centre.

Good Ward got the shutout, while Ernie Carley and George Bingham scored for North Americans.

Leo Cahill, head coach of the Eastern Football Conference Argos, has rolled out the red carpet.

"There are at least a half-dozen Rifle players who can help any team in the Canadian Football League," he said. Cahill said he will give five or six former Rifles five-day trials. Some of them started in Wednesday night's practice.

Linebacker Allan Ray Aldridge, halfback Bob Blakely, quarterback Tom Williamson, flanker Dick Limerick and defensive halfback Leon Mavity will work out with Argos for the next few days.

Cahill also expressed interest in linebacker Ollie Dunlap, former Argo quarterback Eagle Day and flanker Pete Manning.

Rifles, whose collapse was announced Tuesday, lost an estimated $400,000 last season and $300,000 the previous year.

Much of the Canadian talent being used by Victoria Steelers this season comes to them by way of Calgary's Mount Royal Junior College.

Among the four ex-Cougars who were in the starting lineup when the Steelers opened their Continental Football League home season last Saturday with that 19-10 victory which shocked the favored Seattle Rangers, and surprised most of the fans was Ed Ost, a 23-year-old 225-pounder who centered the offense line.

A REUNION
Two former teammates, guards Wayne Conrad and Lutz Keller, flanked him and a third, Barry Taylor, played a solid game in the defense backfield.

Twins, White Sox Lead by Single Point

Pennant Race Actually Four-Way Tie

Detroit Tigers picked up a game and a half, Chicago White Sox gained a game and Boston's Red Sox a half-game yesterday as the road American League pennant scramble became a four-way tie.

Actually, the Twins and White Sox are leading by one percentage point with the Tigers and

AMERICAN LEAGUE	W	L	Pct.	GBL
Minnesota	72	42	.630	—
Chicago	70	44	.614	1 1/2
Boston	69	45	.605	2 1/2
California	73	41	.641	—
Seattle	68	46	.597	3 1/2
Cleveland	67	47	.589	4 1/2
Baltimore	66	48	.580	5 1/2
New York	65	49	.570	6 1/2
Kansas City	64	50	.562	7 1/2

Red Sox tied behind them but the clubs are tied in games. It all came about in a stirring day of baseball which saw the Twins edged, 3-2, by Cleveland Indians; the White Sox swept by the still-hopeful California Angels by the same score in 11 innings and the Tigers pounded out 8-5 and 6-3 wins over Kansas City Athletics.

Twins just couldn't handle Luis Tiant yesterday. The Cleveland right-hander held them to seven hits and drove in two runs with a bases-loaded single.

Knowing before they started their game that victory would give them a first-place tie, the White Sox had to make a spectacular comeback before getting by the pesky Angels.

TOOK 11 INNINGS

The first 10 innings were scoreless but the Angels broke through for two runs in the top of the 11th inning and seemed on their way to their seventh win in eight games. But the Sox battled back, got one run in and then tied it up on a passed ball.

Then Ken Berry doubled in the 13th inning after Duane Josephson had hit a one-out single to end the four-hour, 43-minute struggle and give Chicago its fifth win in six games.

Eddie Mathews hit two home runs in the first game as the Tigers, trailing by 2-4 after six innings, broke out for four runs in the seventh and another pair in the eighth.

WILSON GETS 10TH

Earl Wilson broke a 2-2 tie in the seventh inning of the second game and made himself the first 20-game winner in the major league pennant race by hitting a two-run homer.

Wilson, who has lost 10 games, went the distance with a steady eight-inning.

Gaylord Perry was the featured performer in the National League, where St. Louis Cardinals boosted their lead to 11 1/2 games.

ON HOT STREAK

Perry, off to a slow start this season but recently in top form, extended his streak of scoreless innings to 34 as he pitched San Francisco Giants into second place with a three-hit, 2-0 shut-out of Houston Astros.

Perry previously blanked Los Angeles in nine innings and then pitched 16 scoreless innings in a 21-inning game won by Cincinnati Reds, 1-0. He is 12 1/2 innings away from the league record set by Carl Hubbell and 22 innings short of Walter Johnson's major league record.

Chicago Cubs dropped back a notch when they were beaten by Los Angeles Dodgers, 6-3. Meanwhile, the Cardinals were getting five-hit pitching from Nelson Briles, who has won six in a row, in defeating New York Mets, 3-1.

And the Cardinals needed anything more to clinch, they may get it today when pitching ace Bob Gibson makes his first start since a line drive broke his leg in July.

Toronto Maple Leafs start getting ready

No Tripping Over Tresses

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — There will be no long-haired nipples with Toronto Maple Leafs this National Hockey League season.

The first player to get this message Wednesday was 20-year-old defenceman Jim McKerny who arrived from Ottawa with sideburns and a full head of hair.

McKerny, who played with Tulsa of the Central Professional League last year, was seen by Leafs coach Punch Imlach standing close to the entrance of a barber shop.

"McKerny, I think you'd better get a haircut," Imlach said as he dug his wallet out of his pocket.

"But I just had one," said McKerny. "I don't care if you have or not, get another one and now."

"Here's five dollars. Nobody with long hair plays on my team."

OSHAWA (CP)

Oshawa Green Gaels defeated New Westminster Salmonbellies 11-8 Wednesday to take a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven Canadian Junior A Minto Cup lacrosse finals.

The Green Gaels trailed 5-2 after the first period, but led 7-6 after the second.

Ross Jones, Gaylord Powless and Phil Clayton led the defending champion Green Gaels with three goals each. Single goals came from Charlie Marlowe and Peter Vipond.

Charlie Hardy, Barry Bolton and Ed Conn scored two goals each for Salmonbellies. Al Lett-waite and Kerry Gallagher scored single goals.

Oshawa coach Jim Bishop said New Westminster played a strong first two periods, but did not have the legs for the final period.

New Westminster coach Keith Jackson said his team played better than in the first game, which they lost 17-7, but not as well as they could.

One score point with Jackson was the refereeing. "If our referees officiated this way in our league, I'd quit lacrosse," he complained.

Oshawa outshot the Westerners 33-31, but it was not until the third period that they held a real edge.

Salmonbellies were hurt by penalties. Al Lett-waite shadowed high-scoring Powless throughout the game, but picked up three penalties and allowed Powless to accumulate eight points.

Bowlers Meet

Silver Threads Service Bowling League is holding a meeting today at 2 p.m., at No. 4 Centennial Square to discuss the coming season.

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP)

Clark Graebner of Beachwood, Ohio, the United States' major hope, slugged his way into the quarter-finals of the national tennis championships Wednesday and fixed his sights on two-time champion Roy Emerson of Australia.

The sometime temperamental Davis Cup hero had boy smashed left-handed Mark Cox, Britain's No. 3 player, 6-3, 6-3, 2-6, 6-4.

That put him in the quarters against the 31-year-old Emerson, who toyed with 20-year-old Marcello Lara of Mexico, 6-4, 6-2, 6-4.

BILLIE JEAN KING OF Long Beach, Calif., seeking to add the American to her Wimbledon crown, also breezed easily into the quarter-finals by crushing Virginia Wade of Britain 6-1, 6-4.

Billie Jean's opponent Friday will be Annette Van Zyl of South Africa, who won over Caroline Graebner, Clark's wife, 6-4, 6-4.

Francoise Durr of France, seeded third, beat 18-year-old Valerie Ziegenfuss of San Diego, Calif., defeated Judy Tegar of Australia 7-5, 6-3. They meet in the next round.

Graebner and Emerson were joined in the quarter-finals by Brazilian Ron Barnes and Jan Leschley of Denmark.

Barnes won a hard-fought battle from Bill Bowrey, the promising young Australian, 7-5, 3-6, 9-7, 7-5. Leschley crushed the hopes of Thomas Koch in a five-set marathon of left-handers 4-6, 6-3, 6-6, 6-2, 6-1.

Dad Dies

Watching Flag Win

ROCHESTER, N.Y. — Richmond's Jim Britton, pitching on nerve alone in the ninth inning as his Dad was receiving attention while suffering a fatal heart attack, couldn't quite make it, but received credit for the 2-0 victory which gave the Braves their first international baseball League pennant.

Britain's Dad, Russell, 60, had come down from nearby Tonawanda to watch his 23-year-old son pitch the playoff game against Rochester Red Wings. He collapsed during the ninth inning and was given mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

He was then rushed to a Rochester hospital, where he was pronounced dead an hour later.

Meanwhile, his worried son, who had allowed only two hits in the first eight innings, gamely tried to finish the job. But a single and a base on balls got him in trouble and manager Luman Harris brought in Larry Maxie and, later, Skip Guinn. Between them, they saved Jim's 12th win in 19 decisions.

Camp Followers Mistaken

At Convention They're All Georgie's Girls

By RICHARD JACKSON
TORONTO — Feelings are running hot and high at the Conservative convention. Two Tory ladies, one from Pense and the other from Arcola, Saskatchewan, Wednesday appeared about to clobber Conservative national organizer James Johnston with their purses before they discovered he wasn't party president Dalton Camp.

The two aren't difficult to confuse. Both have what their wives probably would assure them are only "high foreheads," among other quite look-alike features. But Dalton Camp for a year

Marriage Aid

Adultery Beats Mah Jongg

WASHINGTON (AP) — A psychologist says adultery could be "healthy" and render marriage "slightly more tolerable."

"It is better than mah jongg or television," said Dr. Albert Ellis of New York in a report to the American Psychological Association this week.

"It could appear that in our Judeo-Christian society healthy adultery is possible," he told a session on marital counselling.

He said a healthy adulterer has such attributes as being able to carry on an extramarital affair without destroying his marriage and family relationships.

"Hordes of healthy husbands and wives become involved in extramarital affairs. The man who lives in the urban area for 30 years or so and says he never lusts after another woman is to be suspected of being biologically or psychologically abnormal."

Another New York psychologist gave the meeting an idea for achieving world peace: Some form of mass hypnosis to make the world's inhabitants think the planet faced an invasion from outer space.

Without suggesting how the hypnosis could be accomplished, Dr. Harold Greenwald said some such mass suggestion might lead peoples of all countries to forget their differences — and unite to repel a mutual foe, however mythical.

Water Quality Prime Concern

Victoria aldermen shouldn't jump to hasty conclusions about the standards of treatment which the provincial government will demand for sewage under new legislation proposed for the 1968 session, Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell said Wednesday.

He was commenting on earlier claims in city council that the new anti-pollution legislation could cost Victoria between $10,000,000 and $20,000,000, depending upon the degree of treatment required.

Mr. Campbell said it should be borne in mind that the definition of treatment "depends upon whatever impact the raw sewage has on the water into which it is discharged." The question is really one of controlling water quality.

Fountain's Riches Drying Up

With summer on the wane, the cologne take from Victoria's Centennial Fountain will fall off sharply, City Hall officials said Wednesday.

Maintenance chief John Marshall said the contributions to the fountain amount to about $20 to $25 a year. The money is turned over to charity every three months.

Well-to-do donors don't get away with much money, in Mr. Marshall's opinion. Children make off with a few coins, but the Community Chest gets the bulk of the contribution, he said.

Classes Stay Apart

Malvern and Westerham School began its first fall term combined at one address on Wednesday.

The private school at 1785 Rockland Avenue is an amalgamation of the former Malvern House school for boys and Westerham School for girls.

Most classes remain segregated, said headmistress Mrs. Eileen Sealy on Wednesday.

Approximately 100 boys and girls are enrolled.

Westerham School, founded in 1940 by Kathleen Elvidge in Westerham, England, was moved to Joan Crescent in Victoria in 1948.

The Sealy family acquired it in 1956 and moved it to 1785 Rockland.

Malvern House was founded in 1923 at 1024 Richmond Avenue by T. P. Emmerson. Westerham School Ltd. acquired Malvern in 1963.

Malvern and Westerham School teaches grades one to 12.

Austerity Plan Accepted

TORONTO (CP) — An economic program tailored to deal with an immediate period of austerity and to provide stimulation for long-term growth received approval in principle Wednesday from the economic development policy subcommittee at the Conservative leadership convention.

Accepting a theory that Canada is heading into a recessionary period, the committee recommended measures to counteract its effect, primarily a general belt-tightening.

Delegates urged close co-operation between the federal and provincial governments, a critical review of cost-sharing agreements and a postponement of medical care insurance.

Delegates also expressed concern about rising welfare costs and, at one point, chairman John de Wolfe of Vancouver almost had approval for a suggestion to recommend discontinuance of family allowances on a universal basis.

However some delegates had a last-minute change of heart and Gerrard Amerongen of Edmonton suggested tempering the recommendation to propose assistance only to persons in need.

COST SHARING
Delegates shied away from the unpopular idea of a means test and instead suggested exploration of the possibility of using income tax returns as a "negative income tax system."

The subcommittee suggested re-examination of priorities with a view to eliminating or reducing some provincial cost-sharing arrangements. The need to hold the line on federal spending was cited as a basic reason.

There was agreement that Canada should encourage foreign investment and should make efforts to reduce trade barriers. However, the group proposed a form of tariff aimed at encouraging home manufacture of goods from Canadian raw materials.

A moment later James Johnston could have been taking his humps from their purses, except that a keeper-of-the-convention peace intervened with the introductions.

To another of these prairie Diefenbaker loyalists, anybody wearing any button other than The Chief's, is being scornfully asked off as "you and you."

If anybody could be at peace with The Chief's loyal women from the west, it would be George Hees.

Tories Back NATO —For Now

Starr

Starr Campaigner

Meet Heidi, Hairy Ham

TORONTO (CP) — Heidi must like Mike Starr so much she could eat him.

In the absence of the Conservative leadership candidate Wednesday, she tried to eat his "Starr for leader" badge instead.

"Stop it," said K. Papanikolaou, 80-pound chimpanzee hired to parade the lobby of the Royal York Hotel in support of Mr. Starr. "That's the second badge this afternoon."

Occasionally, Heidi reached over to the Starr placard reading:

"Lead Us Out of the Jungle — Starr for Unity."

Heidi, a blonde, Mike Starr, and candidate badge, Heidi likes reporters. She leaped from a chair into the arms of one trying to get her views on the Progressive Conservative leadership contest.

"I took a last man with a notebook and pencil to keep out of reach of Heidi's long, hairy arms."

Frustrated in her efforts to crash the fourth debate, she took to with a supporter of Premier Robert Stanfield, giving him the full treatment of a leaping bear, slapping, dancing, handshaking and wide grin to show the gaps in a powerful-looking set of teeth.

"Then, like a woman, she ditched him in favor of a good healthy scratch."

Toronto Convention

Union Roasting Brings Results

TORONTO (CP) — A fiery Sudbury delegate complained Wednesday that the problems of labor are being ignored by the policy subcommittee on economic development at the Conservative leadership convention.

L. A. Soden, a member of the United Steelworkers of America, made his bitter complaint near the end of two days of discussion on potential economic policy for the party. Chairman John de Wolfe had, on at least two occasions during the meetings, asked Mr. Soden to delay introducing his suggestions.

NEGLECT WORKERS
As the last session appeared to be ending, Mr. Soden said: "The political parties too often neglect to think of the union and workers and it has been evident here. I have been hampered here for the last couple of days."

"We are as important as any other industry and sooner or later you're going to have to realize it. "If this party is going to survive, it is going to have to look down at the man that has to vote. You have to adopt programs he can support."

"Whether you realize it or not, mister, there are people that are saying this is the party of the big shot."

POINT ACCEPTED
After a debate, delegates agreed to include part of Mr. Soden's suggestions in the committee report. They accepted an assertion that unions are major centres of the economy which deserve consideration that legislation be enacted to ensure democratic procedures within a union's constitution before it can become certified and that local unions should be able to withdraw from national and international unions without penalties.

A proposal to use anti-combines legislation as a means of regulating unions was rejected.

Voting Rights Given To 2,429 Tories

TORONTO (CP) — A total of 2,429 delegates will have voting rights at the Conservative leadership convention, the party announced Wednesday. A detailed breakdown of voting delegates will be made public Saturday.

FBI in Middle

Camouflaged Right Invades New Left

CHICAGO (UPI) — The U.S. "new left" movement has been invaded by right wing spies in hippie clothing, it was reported Wednesday.

Some of the young men and women who attended the recently concluded conference of new politics here were sent in to spy or to provoke incidents, said a source close to the conference.

ONE PERSON

"We know for a fact that one person who was working on our staff was passing information to the FBI," the source said. "We found out about this on the first day of the conference. This person has been, shall we say, discommodated."

The conference, which attracted a wide assortment of adherents of the far left, was called to co-ordinate the peace and civil rights movements and to work for the defeat of President Johnson possibly by creating a third party.

TAKEN OVER

The conference was taken over in its early stages by Negro militants.

"Those who spied on us used both Negroes and whites," the source said. "They used both men and women. Many of them in those real far-out costumes were suspected of being spies. "Also, we suspected some of the speakers who shouted for attention and made wild statements. Their mission was to make the conference look bad," he said.

organization becomes obsolete. Then she should renegotiate her contribution, exploring the possibility of a non-nuclear or even a non-military role.

On NORAD, the majority of delegates said Canada should negotiate with the U.S. a "more adequate system of continental defence against missiles, aircraft, submarines, and other possible enemy weapons."

The subcommittee's recommendations now go before a plenary session of the convention policy committee.

PEACE KEPT

Both recommendations were passed at a three-hour session during which opponents of the move argued that Canada should press for a non-nuclear role in NATO. They said nothing the country does contributes to the defense of North America.

Douglas Harkness, former defence minister and MP for Calgary North, supported both recommendations.

The opposition came from two professors, Thomas Hockin of Toronto and Jack Granatstein of Ottawa.

Prof. Hockin said the U.S. has an invulnerable deterrent with its intercontinental ballistic missile system and missile-armed submarines and that Canada should rely on this.

Prof. Granatstein said Bomarc and Voodoo missiles based in Canada are obsolete and would be useless against missile attack.

The subcommittee also recommended a two-China policy, advocating immediate diplomatic recognition of Red China to "assist bringing about normal relations" with the West.

Accessories and Trim Highlights Of Canadian Fashions for Fall

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

With the hemlines still hovering nervously above the knee and with the points on shoes finally just a memory, except for women left with a closet full of them, this fall's fashion news centres on accessories, trim and color.

In a Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press, the leading colors most often named by fashion experts are brown, greens and the pink-to-plum range.

In Saint John, N.B., and Ottawa, rust is the predicted favorite. In Montreal, Toronto and St. John's Nfld., a dark chocolate brown is high on the list. In Vancouver and Winnipeg it is mentioned as a sleeper.

Montreal alone reports black as the dominant color. It will be worn in a total look including black opaque hose.

Hardware is the big word in accessories and trim. There will be chain belts, brass buckles. Industrial zippers for centre and off-centre openings, metal buttons, loops, bolts and nailheads.

Paint-suits, paint-dresses and mini-skirts with matching shoes and bloomers will make the scene again. A favored mini-dress is the long, striped sweater.

More conventional knits, mohairs, tweeds and plaids are predicted as the top suit fabrics. A Regina buyer says costumes of dress and jacket or dress and jacket or dress and coat will sell there. Chatterbox and Inter-Vancouver both report an interest in plain, flat-faced fabrics as well as the textured ones.

Coats will have more shape than in recent years, and fur trim will supply a new fashion note.

A Winnipeg furrier says lavish trim in light shades such as fox, pale mink and bleached beaver is being used on collars, cuffs and hem edging and banding on side openings.

Capes, especially for the young, are stylish in Toronto and Edmonton.

The so-called Dr. Zhivago coat is on display in Montreal, but mostly as a show item. An Edmonton fashion co-ordinator comments that the mid-calf style would make sense in Alberta's winter climate, but predicts only the courageous will wear one. Others, she says, will continue to freeze in less avant-garde lengths.

Edmonton, Regina, Winnipeg, Ottawa, Vancouver and Montreal fashion experts all predict the comeback of the hat, particularly the Greta Garbo wide, floppy brim, and some northern frocks styles. This new-old accessory will take on the season's bright colors.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: You keep telling wives to "forgive and forget" and then you always add, "If you are wise you will never throw it up to him. Never mention it again."

I KNOW this is wonderful advice, but I just can't keep my big mouth shut.

My husband became involved with a very good-looking woman at work. He said he became fascinated with her and lost his head. This woman is a beautiful Chinese, a devout Catholic, and married to a Mexican who won't work. They have five children. He admitted everything and promised it would never happen again.

Well, things were perfect for two days and then me and my big mouth — I ruined everything. I made an uncalculated remark about his carrying the "ecumenical spirit too far." He started to move out but I begged him to stay. I promised never to bring up the subject again. That was yesterday. So far, so good, but I live in fear that I will lose my temper again and spoil everything. Why can't I be like those women who keep their mouths shut and live happily ever after? Please tell me the secret. — TALK TOO MUCH

Dear Talk: There is no secret. It's one of the best-known principles of successful human relations. If all of us said everything that came to our minds, no two people in the world would be speaking. When you feel yourself getting hostile, walk out of the room and go do something that requires physical energy. Scrub a tub.

a floor. Wash a wall. Beat a rug.

Dear Ann Landers: I read the letter from the girl who said she had problems and no one to talk to. She also said she hoped you wouldn't suggest her favorite teacher because she had gone to her so many times that she didn't want to bother her any more.

I also had problems. Things were going very badly at home. I couldn't get along with my parents and I felt like an outsider. My attitude toward life was sour and pessimistic. One of my teachers noticed that I seemed depressed and out of it. She asked me to stay after school so we could talk. Before I knew it, I was pouring out my heart to her. She was so kind and understanding. She gave me encouragement and hope and helped build my confidence.

From then on I knew I had a friend. I went to her often and we talked over many problems. She has always been willing to listen, no matter how busy she was. I don't think I would have made it if it hadn't been for her. Please print this letter. I'd like her to know how much she is appreciated. — GRATEFUL

Dear Grateful: Here's your letter. I am not printing the name of your city because I am sure there are hundreds, maybe thousands, of teachers who have earned your laurel wreath. To those of you who owe a debt of gratitude to a teacher who has helped you over some rough spots, why not sit down and tell her or him? It would mean a great deal — and it might encourage these teachers to continue to help other young students who are stumbling in the wilderness.

Carlene Westinghouse Bride of J. C. Hollemans

A wedding of wide interest in Greater Victoria took place Saturday when Carlene Sylvia Westinghouse became the bride of Jan Cornelis Hollemans.

Rev. O. L. Foster officiated at the service in St. Stephen's Church which was decorated with white and yellow gladioli for the occasion. Mrs. Foster was organist.

Parents of the principals are Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey H. Westinghouse, 539 Towner Park Road, and Mr. and Mrs. Jan H. J. Hollemans, who came from their home at Sittard, the Netherlands, to attend the ceremony.

The strains of the "Viennese Refrain" rang out as the bride entered the church on the arm of her father. She was lovely in an A-line full-length gown of white silk tulle that was fashioned with an empire waistline and enhanced with Guipure lace at the waist and on the skirt. The same lace accented the cathedral train which swept from a bow at the waistline. Lace also edged her pill-box beehive which held the scalloped four-tier veil of silk illusion net. She carried a cascading bouquet of cream Johanna Hill roses, white stephanotis and ivy.

Autumn shades of brown, orange and yellow were used for the full-length empire-waisted gowns of light wool worn by matron of honor, Mrs. Eric Boulton, Gabriola Island, and bridesmaids, Miss Janice Champour, Providence, Rhode Island, and Miss Toni Shorrock, Seattle. Their accessories picked up the orange shade. In their hair they wore flowers to match their bouquets of yellow Shasta daisies.

Paul Worster, Vancouver, was best man and ushering guests were the bride's brothers, George and Dan Westinghouse.

Dr. Gordon H. Grant proposed the toast to the bride at the reception which followed in the garden of her parents' home. Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. Frances C. Lord, Asheville, North Carolina; John and Robert Curran of Anchorage, Alaska, and Mrs. A. V. Shorrock, Seattle.

Leaving on a honeymoon trip up-island, the bride donned a dressmaker suit in soft green and blue wool, turquoise topcoat, and navy blue hat. The newlyweds will make their home in Vancouver.

Mark Diamond Wedding

Capt. G. T. Jennings and Mrs. Jennings have returned to their Vancouver Street home after a stay at Fairmont Hot Springs, B.C. where they were honored at a gathering, arranged to mark the couple's diamond anniversary.

They received an engraved silver tray at a family dinner and celebration. Present were their six children, nine grandchildren, four great-grandchildren and eight other relatives.

Attending were Mr. and Mrs. Tom Jenner of Vernon, Major H. D. Jenner, Wiltondale, Ont.;

Mrs. Lorne Rowe with Darlene and Heather, all of Sudbury, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. Tom Greenfield of Regina, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Roy with Sylvia and Tammy, all of Kelowna; Mrs. Walter Beragon with Tommy and Ellen, all of Surrey, B.C.; Mr. and Mrs. Donald Macdonald with Mark and Steena, all of Victoria; Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Jenner of Prince George, Mr. and Mrs. James Kam of Kelowna and Mr. Russell Greenfield, Calgary. Greetings were received from Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth, Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson, Mayor Hugh Stephen and many relatives and friends.

Capt. Jenner is a veteran of the Boer War and was made a freeman of the city of London for his service with the City Imperial Volunteers. He is also a veteran of the First World War, having served overseas with the 28th Battalion. He and his wife came to Canada from England in 1914.

Contractors Complain

Licence Claim Denied by City

A claim that hundreds of contractors and sub-contractors are operating in the Victoria district without trade licences was denied Wednesday at City Hall.

City Manager Dennis Young said the charge, made in a letter to city council from John Schibli, secretary of the Vancouver Island Building and Construction Trades Council, might be true elsewhere but not in Victoria.

"If anyone has any knowledge of a business operating in Victoria without a business licence, he should let us know the name of the firm immediately," Mr. Young said.

An extensive survey made by officers of some of the construction council's affiliated trade unions showed only a small percentage of the hundreds of contractors and subcontractors engaged in the house building industry in this area are licensed in all the municipalities in which they operate, Mr. Schibli's letter said.

"We cannot fail to be amazed that this guaranteed and ready source of revenue is so casually neglected by your municipality while, at the same time you are forced to annually increase the mill rate," the letter added.

TWO MANY

He also thought far too many licences were being granted to so-called contractors, and it appeared no qualifications were necessary except that the applicant meet the cost of the licence.

"We feel that a stricter control over the issuance of such licences is necessary in the best interest of the taxpayers. The indiscriminate granting of such licences is leading to a decline in the quality of construction," Mr. Schibli said.

QUALIFIED PEOPLE

He said he trusted council would take steps to enforce existing regulations and permit only qualified people to enter the industry as contractors.

Trade licences were not control devices, Mr. Young pointed out. They were chiefly revenue-producing systems.

"We expect a degree of policing from within the industry concerned," Mr. Young added.

Hotel for Sale

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Royal Alexandra Hotel, a 61-year-old Winnipeg landmark, is up for sale.

A small for-sale advertisement in local newspapers Tuesday ended months of speculation about the future of the 450-room, Canadian Pacific Railway-owned hotel.

Islanders Finish UBC Course

Four island women will receive certificates in physical and occupational therapy at a ceremony this evening at the University of British Columbia.

The students have spent four years at UBC, three of them in the university's school of rehabilitation medicine.

The island graduates are Marlene Erickson, 1001 Thunderbird Drive, Nanaimo; Nancy Jean Gray, 943 Old Esquimalt Road, Victoria; Karen L. Peterson, Courtenay, and Patricia Frances Storey, Port Hardy.

Former City Solicitor

F. L. Shaw Dies at 77

Forrest L. Shaw, 77, for many years a prominent figure in civic and provincial affairs, died here Wednesday.

Former Victoria city solicitor, acting solicitor for the Union of B.C. Municipalities in 1944 and former member of the B.C. Power Commission, Mr. Shaw was extremely active in community affairs during his more than 35 years in the city.

His greatest cause was for the principle of amalgamation of Greater Victoria, a losing fight.

TOWN PLANNING

Past president of the Vancouver Island Division of the Navy League of Canada for 10 years, he was also a trustee of the Victoria city debt retirement board, and a director of the Kwantlen Village Society and the Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Shaw was former chairman of the Town Planning Commission of Victoria, the Memorial Arena Commission and the Citizens' Rehabilitation Council of Greater Victoria, and past president of the Victoria Kiwanis and the Canadian Clubs of Victoria.

In 1946, Mr. Shaw received the Order of the British Empire.

Born in Bayview, Wash., Mr. Shaw moved to Canada with his parents in 1891, and began studying law in 1913.

BAD WOUND

He was severely wounded in action while serving with the 7th Battalion in the First World War. Called to the bar in Victoria after the war, he engaged in private practice until 1938 when he was appointed city solicitor.

He served on the B.C. power commission from 1945 to 1954, when he resumed private practice. He was a Liberal candidate in the 1960 provincial election.

Mr. Shaw could trace his family history back to Shaw Mor, the founder of the family, who died in 1465.

CITADEL CAPTURE

Another ancestor, Alexander Shaw, engaged in the capture of the Citadel of Quebec in 1759 and later became lieutenant-governor of the Isle of Man.

Mr. Shaw is survived by his widow, Edna; two daughters, Mrs. W. R. A. Baragar of Ottawa and Mrs. J. C. D. Milton of Deep River and a sister, Lily, of Victoria.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Big Throng Gives Final Farewell

Three hundred persons attended the funeral here Wednesday of Mrs. Grace Mayhew, wife of Robert Mayhew, Canada's first ambassador to Japan.

Among the dignitaries who attended the services at McCull's chapel were Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes, Mayor Hugh Stephen and members of city council, University of Victoria president Dr. Malcolm Taylor, former mayor R. H. Wilson, chancellor of the University of Victoria, Dr. F. T. Fairley and deputy provincial secretary L. J. Wallace.

Honorary pallbearers were W. T. Strath, R. W. Phillips, John Baynes, F. M. McGregor, Walter Fletcher, Dean Robert T. Wallace, Wilkie Lawraon, David Lawraon, Garth Mayhew, Robert Mayhew II and Kirk Davis.

The fresh, sweet flavor that babies love...

"PACIFIC
...my first word"

The joys of a happy baby are long remembered. To thousands of families, one of babies pleasant "first words" has been a formula of Pacific Evaporated Milk or Pacific Concentrated Partly Skimmed Milk. So fresh-tasting and sweet, Pacific is the finest quality available. Why not make your first word "Pacific" —when baby comes home from the hospital.

P.S. Another great quality product from Pacific

As a drink fresh from the refrigerator or used in cooking, everyone loves the flavor of Pacific Instant Skim Milk Powder. It's made from the milk of B.C.'s famous Fraser Valley dairy herds . . . and is the only instant skim milk powder processed in Western Canada!

All Expectations Exceeded By Home Grant

B.C.'s home-buyer grants continue to smash all predictions for popularity, with 20,000 applications received, 15,000 grants sent out, and letters of inquiry coming in at an average 100 a day, Premier Bennett said Wednesday.

"We like that, because it means people are building more houses," the premier said. Most of the grants were for the full amount of $500, but some were smaller, he added, because the recipients had previously received some homeowner grants. No estimate of total outlay is available.

Mr. Bennett also announced members of the armed forces would get special treatment under the grant scheme.

FIVE YEARS

Servicemen who had lived for five years in the province before being sent elsewhere can, provided they return immediately to B.C., qualify for a home-buyer grant without observing the mandatory 12-month waiting period.

Mr. Bennett told reporters he is drafting his 1968 budget and added that prospects for the future "from this desk look bright."

He predicted the budget to be brought down next February will be the biggest in the history of the province, exceeding this year's estimated spending of $739,000,000.

HIGHER TOTALS

Other predictions: personal incomes will be higher in B.C. in 1968 and so will retail sales and advertising.

"You can say on my (67th) birthday that I'm more optimistic than ever, this Social Credit government is more dynamic than ever, and we are not looking to the past, but ahead," said Mr. Bennett.

He said his two-block progress to the Union Club for lunch Wednesday was repeatedly interrupted by citizens who wished him a happy birthday. One bus dispatcher, the premier said, sang Happy Birthday, and actor Sebastian Cabot shook his hand.

PHONE GREETINGS

He breakfasted with Mrs. Bennett at 7 a.m. and received phone calls of congratulation from members of his family. Later, more phone calls and wires arrived at his office.

"What I like about political life in B.C. is the goodwill that does exist between people of different political parties," Mr. Bennett said. "There is keen competition but no bitterness, and the people are very friendly."

Winter Works

Ottawa Aid Stays

The federal-provincial winter work program will be continued on the same basis as 1966 for this year only, but will run five months instead of six, Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell said Wednesday.

Ottawa earlier raised the issue of the provinces by proposing to have federal grants to so-called richer municipalities.

Mr. Campbell criticized the reduction in the time span of the program and also attacked Ottawa for refusing to allow individual municipalities to decide whether local programs should start Nov. 1 or Dec. 1.

As things stand, said Mr. Campbell, B.C. must decide whether the program for the province as a whole starts on one corner of these dates. He said Ottawa claims that to do otherwise would make the program impossible to administer efficiently.

B.C., which does the administration for this province, doesn't agree, the minister said. He added the government doesn't feel competent to make this decision, and therefore will refer it to the Union of B.C. Municipalities' convention at Prince George Sept. 20 to 22.

Unexpected Plane Rescue

Pickersgill's Daughter Helps Save Survivor

GANDER, Nfld. (CP) — The unexpected rescue of a woman six hours after Tuesday's 34-death plane crash was described Wednesday by the first medical person on the scene, Dr. Jane Pickersgill, daughter of federal Transport Minister J. W. Pickersgill.

She told her story as officials said many of the 35 injured in the crash of a Czech Illyushin-18 turbo-prop aircraft remained in critical condition.

She said that, when virtually all hope was gone for any more survivors, "I believe somebody was reaching under the wreckage and touched the hand of somebody who had been caught there ever since the plane crash.

"They thought that probably a doctor should be there when they pulled this person out so I went in a helicopter and gave her some morphine—because she was having considerable pain—and stood around for about 10 or 15 minutes while they lifted off some heavy wreckage.

"They brought out the woman. We carried her back to the hospital in a stretcher. She was actually the last (living) person that was found."

Asked about the woman's condition Wednesday, Dr. Pickersgill said:

"She's here and she's very well. She wasn't burned very much. Her injuries are mostly fractures and so on, so she's probably better off than most of them."

Meanwhile a team of 10 transport department investigators and as many more representatives of the Czech, Cuban and Polish diplomatic services tried Wednesday to piece together what happened.

They denied early rumors suggesting a bomb may have been placed aboard the aircraft. One of the Canadian officials said this possibility was always investigated as a matter of course but "there is no evidence to indicate that something like that happened."

French School Protest Reaches Fighting Stage

MONTREAL (CP) — For the third straight week, French-speaking groups have clashed in suburban Pierrefonds over objections to certain property owners to construction of a French-language elementary school.

Fighting, shouting and banner-waving flared in the latest outbreak of friction when a separatist party held a rally Tuesday night to demand that the "fundamental rights" of French-Canadian school children be respected.

It was the most serious outbreak of the three demonstrations, held each Tuesday night for the last three weeks in the northwest Montreal municipality.

TEAR GAS
Pierrefonds police, aided by provincial police and police from neighboring communities, had to use tear gas and nightsticks to break up a violent two-hour battle that involved an estimated 500 persons.

Before a city council meeting was held behind closed doors it was decided to go ahead with completion of the school, located in the largely English-speaking Versailles Gardens residential area.

ASSISTANCE ASKED
Meanwhile, Pierrefonds Mayor Andre Theoret decided Wednesday to ask the provincial government for direct assistance in preventing any future demonstrations and disorders.

The 31-man Pierrefonds police force, he said, is not able to protect the municipality's 30,000 inhabitants if the separatist group keeps its promise to return.

Three policemen and 10 demonstrators were injured in the latest Tuesday clash which police said, started after a small number of English-speaking persons began singing O Canada during a speech by Pierre Bourgault, leader of Rassemblement pour l'indépendance nationale, a separatist party.

The English-speaking group waved the Canadian flag and the Red Ensign while the French-speaking group waved hundreds of banners and shouted separatist slogans.

Police tried to maintain a human wall to keep the two groups apart but a rush was made and some direct fighting broke out.

TRAFFIC PROBLEM

Primarily, the controversy concerns a French-speaking school the district Catholic school commission started to build in Versailles Gardens. The district was not zoned for school building and a referendum of property owners earlier voted to keep it that way.

The property owners association said its decision was not based on racial or religious grounds. It was concerned about the increase in traffic a new school would bring and its possible effect on property values.

SAME SCHOOL
The school commission went ahead with construction on the basis of legal advice, but the municipality took "but an injunction in Superior Court to stop work on the building."

Until the new school is built, both language groups will continue going to classes at Montsignor Deschamps on a staggered-hours timetable.

Burning Allowed In Yards

Greater Victoria residents now may use backyard incinerators, providing municipal permits have been obtained and common-sense precautions are used.

In Victoria, Saanich and Oak Bay, incinerator permits are required, an incinerator must have a screen cover and a responsible person must have the incinerator under observation.

No burning permit is required in Esquimalt, where incinerators may be used between 7 and 9 a.m. provided the fire is kept under observation and a screen is used on top of the incinerator.

Yellow Pages Ignored

SANTA BARBARA, Calif.
(UPI) — Fifteen months ago, municipal Judge Frank Kearney ordered Nancy Hernandez, then 21, to undergo surgical sterilization as a condition of probation after she admitted being in a place where marijuana was used.

The order caused a storm of public protest and was reversed by a higher court.

This week, Nancy was married to Joseph Sanchez, 23, after his release from a term for possession of the same marijuana. To marry them, she chose Judge Kearney, explaining, "I wanted him because I knew him by name."

Walk Out —Fired

VANCOUVER (CP) — Thirty-four driver-salesmen employed by Seven-Up of Canada Ltd. said Wednesday they were fired after walking out the day before.

They said they walked out because the firm refused to discuss grievances concerning working conditions, hours and fringe benefits. The company said the men could reapply for their jobs.

Cycle Gang Ticketed

KAMLOOPS (CP) — An RCMP spokesman said Tuesday that police doled out 38 traffic tickets to a gang of motorcycle-ists who terrorized the interior community of Clinton Saturday.

Staff Sgt. Gordon Simons of Kamloops subdivision said the tickets were for offences like faulty mufflers, lack of crash helmets, and other traffic violations.

OTHER CHARGES

But police are continuing investigation of other incidents when the gang clashed with local residents and "a number of other charges will likely be laid," he said.

During the evening the cyclists began a disturbance in a beer-parlor and later beat a citizen on the street. Villagers armed themselves with guns to fend off the invaders.

The two-man Clinton RCMP force was bolstered by 45 RCMP officers from other interior detachments during the weekend.

ONE WOUNDED

Staff Sgt. Simons said police are also continuing their investigation into the shooting of motorcyclist Jerry Spreuw, 18, of Powell River, who was wounded in the leg.

Three Clinton residents appeared in court Tuesday charged with possession of weapons dangerous to the public peace. The three, John Hewitt, Frank Morin and Laurence Campbell were remanded to Oct. 3 on bail of $200.

The 40-member gang was escorted back to the Vancouver area Sunday after police raided their camp.

Mr. Spreuw said that the RCMP who escorted the cyclists issued tickets for no reason at all.

"The way they were handing tickets you'd have thought they were going out of style," he said.

R. H. Conn, Clinton village chairman, said the village commission will hold a meeting Date of the meeting has not been set but it will be held "once we have all the facts," Mr. Conn said.

Above is the trench that holds the key. Here, on Gabriola Island, scientists have probed patiently for traces of past. Much digging was done with a trowel, and nothing larger than a trowel was used. Bones 2,000 years old have been discovered.

Skeleton (left) takes its first look at the world since being buried roughly 2,000 years ago on Gabriola Island. The remains are among a large quantity of Indian artifacts discovered by a party of University of Victoria archeology students, who have been digging on the island all summer. The artifacts will be displayed in the provincial museum, Victoria. Although this person had no worries about a nuclear war, there was still warlike features to watch for on a raid from the Queen Charlotte Islands. (Agnes Fleet Photos)

Communication Lack May Kill College

COURTENAY—The big Parkville seminar designed to provide information on the proposed regional college was a failure as far as city council here is concerned.

It did not convince officials their area should support the venture.

Mayor George Hobson said "Several questions remain to be answered."

Ald. Harry Harris said the seminar only provided "one-way communication."

There will be a vote on the college issue in about three weeks.

The mayor said he "has not formed any opinion" on the college question, although he attended the conference.

Ald. Harris was the city's representative on the college advisory committee.

He claimed there was no opportunity for disagreement at the forum, since all questions were written down.

He expressed the opinion that any future meetings must provide this opportunity.

He told council while he is in favor of the general concept of the regional college, there must be more research into the matter, and there must be something wrong in B.C.

He pointed out Castlegar has a problem... the five top men left their posts.

In the Okanagan, Ald. Harris said, the residents voted yes on the first vote and no on the second. In the meantime certain staff had been hired and now there are no funds with which to pay them.

Ald. Bill Bell, referring to the seminar, said the speakers were educators pushing for a college.

In the opinion of Ald. Geoff Browning, the government might be looking for a way to foist the cost of higher education on the homeowner.

Ald. Harris outlined a college system in force in Washington which is financed 100 per cent by the government both for capital and operating costs.

"I feel this matter hasn't been planned well enough on a provincial basis, and this may be the reason why it is being rejected elsewhere," he stated.

Later after suggesting council appoint someone else in his place to serve on the committee, he added "As a member of the advisory committee I do not feel I can go out and promote this."

The mayor told Ald. Harris he had done what council had asked of him, and said he would be very reluctant to replace him on the advisory committee.

Garden Notes

Perennial Perennials

By M. V. CHEBENT

Last spring, during the time for buying and setting out bedding plants, I devoted several columns to recommending annual flowers which could be counted upon to keep on blooming pretty well all summer long. In contrast to these kinds that "go for broke" in one grand splash of color, then pack up. A reader has just taken me to task for failing to make the same recommendations in regard to perennial flowers.

This is an important point in planning a perennial border, for so many of our most charming subjects are notoriously short in their season of bloom — one has only to think of the peonies and oriental poppies, contributing nothing but understated foliage after their brief flush of bloom. I wouldn't want to get along without these lovely subjects, but in a very small garden, their fleeting performance isn't enough to pay the rent — to justify the space they occupy.

I think one of the most persistent bloomers in our garden is the Geum, and I cannot understand why I see it in so few of my neighbors' perennial beds.

It is a close relative of the strawberry, standing about 18 inches tall, and like the everbearing strawberry, it keeps on producing its cheerful blossoms from late spring right through into late fall.

Another endearing quality in the Geum is its exceptional ease of culture. All it asks is half-decent soil, with some slight preference for a sandy loam, and a little water occasionally during the perennial border. Newer and still somewhat hard to come by is Fire Opal, a dazzling scarlet flower with an overlay of orange in the petals.

Geums are surprisingly easy to raise from seed, and seeds are listed in most of the seed catalogues for 15 cents to 25 cents per packet. It is unlikely that any of the newer kinds will turn up from a packet of mixed seeds; they will consist mostly of the old reliables, Mrs.

Bradshaw and Lady Stratheden, both of which come true from seed.

The easier way, of course, is to buy your plants, and husky young Geums are usually available from local plantmen in spring and fall for around 50 cents each. Planted this fall, these will provide plenty of color next year.

I think it is a good idea to set out the plants in groups of three, with about a foot of spacing between the plants and arranged in the form of a triangle. These will grow together to form a bigish clump and a solid mass of bloom. The scarlet and orange varieties are most effective when associated with blue flowers, especially Andromeda, while the yellow kinds go well with pink and purple shades. The plants multiply rather like the numberless strawberry, by making multiple crowns, and should be taken up and divided every third year.

The Geum carries its flowers on thin, stiff stems well above the foliage and is always very much in demand as a cut flower. The stems are rather hard and wiry, though, and don't take up water too readily unless they are well bruised near the stem ends immediately after cutting.

ART BUCHWALD Loses Debate

Is Marriage Renewable?

WASHINGTON — Since all our sacred institutions are under attack these days, it comes as no surprise to read that our concept of marriage has been challenged by a member of the American Psychological Association.

In a paper presented at a conference here, Mrs. Virginia Satz, a psychological social worker from Big Sur, Calif., attacked the marriage vow people in the western Christian world are forced to take. She said marriage is the only human contract in our society that has no time length, no opportunity for review, and no socially acceptable means of termination.

To expect people to make an unerring choice of a life partner is to ask them to be wiser than they can possibly be, she added.

Mrs. Satz's solution is a simple one. She advocates that marriage should be a five-year renewable contract. If the marriage goes well for the first five years, the couple could renew the contract for future five-year periods. If it fails, it would automatically be dissolved without undue stress, expense, litigation or social stigma.

When I read the article I naturally became very indignant and said to my wife: "Can you imagine? Some woman psychologist is advocating that marriage be based on a five-year contract, which is renewable only if both parties agree."

"Why do you bring it up?" my wife asked.

"Why?" I said, as I threw down the newspaper in disgust. "Because to me marriage is a sacred institution and once you're married you shouldn't have to decide every five years whether you want to continue it or not. Decisions like that could drive a man crazy."

"Then what you're saying," my wife said quietly, "is that you're not sure you'd be willing to renew the contract whenever a five-year period was up."

"That's not what I'm saying at all. In our case it would probably be automatic."

"Probably?"

"You're trying to put me in a corner," I protested. "Of course it would be automatic, though if I am to be honest I'd have to admit that as the five-year deadline came near I might give it more thought than I would under the present set of rules."

"Why is that?" she asked with a grin on her lips.

"It's just natural. If people have options every five years they would think about them. Marriage is a very serious business and I'm sure you would think much less of me if I just signed a contract every five years without reading the small print. I'm not saying I wouldn't sign after I read it, but I might want to add a few clauses here and there that I hadn't thought of when we first got married."

"Such as what?" she said, as she straightened out the lamp shade next to our bed.

"Well, I might put some ceilings on the spending of money, add a few paragraphs about your mother, and maybe include a freedom clause for myself, things like that. But don't worry, there would be nothing in the contract that would stop you from signing it."

"Suppose I wanted to add a few clauses of my own?" she asked.

"What?" I said. "You wreck a perfect marriage!"

"It hardly seems worth discussing," she said, "particularly since it's doubtful that your psychologist friend's ideas are going to be adopted in the near future."

"I should hope not," I replied. "It would be a travesty in human relationships if, every five years, people had to decide whether they wanted to live together. You'd never be sure, after you signed, that you hadn't made a terrible mistake."

I didn't see the lamp coming until it was too late.

Jason's No Satchmo

HOLLYWOOD-ON-THAMES (NANA) — Jason Roberts, in London to play Paris Singer, one of Vanessa Redgrave's lovers in Isadora, brought his trumpet with him from America to practice for his role of a brooding-down trumpet player in his forthcoming play on Broadway, Jason, which will be played at the New York City Theatre. "I'm good enough," Jason said. According to his Mayfair neighbors, he is not yet good enough.

MGM is bringing over 150 reporters from the U.S. to attend the special showing of Far from the Madding Crowd in London, then off they all go with the stars, Julie Christie, Terence Stamp and also Bates to Thomas Hardy country in the west of England where the movie was made.

I hear glowing reports of Stamp's performance in the picture and I'm delighted. He proved himself a fine actor in Billy Budd but his films afterwards were not in the same class with his talent.

I cornered Michael Caine at Otto Preminger's party, following the British premiere of Harry Winston. He half-apologized for the film, saying, "Our intentions were honorable." It took some courage on Preminger's part to attend the party, after the devastating British reviews. "It's doing something business in America," said Michael stoutly, "especially in the south." It should. The white men, with the exception of John Phillip Law are all monsters. I'm not easily shocked when I see a movie, but I thought the sex scenes in Harry Winston were clumsy, embarrassing, quite revolting and obviously employed by Preminger to sell his picture.

Lee Van Cleef and his wife have decided to make Rome their permanent headquarters. Lee, Clint Eastwood's buddy in the fabulously successful "Dollars" pictures, has been offered some movies in Hollywood, but he'll stick to Rome because he is now a star, with a salary spiralling up to $250,000.

The Illusions of Love

Although I firmly believe that most of the trouble in the world is caused by people who are trying to run away from reality, I am equally sure that a certain kind of illusion is a good and necessary part of human life.

I recently visited friends for a weekend — a young psychiatrist and his wife, who have just had a baby.

The new mother was ecstatic about her child, and sublimely convinced that he was the most beautiful and charming baby in the world. The father looked upon her enthusiasm approvingly. "Every new mother," he whispered to me, "must have this naive illusion — in order to give the child the full attention it needs."

Bernard Shaw, who was capable of many things, but not of love, once said: "Love represents a gross overestimation of the difference between one person and everybody else in the world."

This disenchanted remark was perfectly true — but Shaw didn't really understand that the illusion is essential to the proper running of society.

Love, of any kind, is a distortion of reality; the child is objectively not so wonderful, the sweetheart is objec-tively not so alluring. But the "realism" that sees this and knows this is not capable of making the sacrifices and enduring the tediousness that is part of any close and continuing relationship.

It is the mother's "naive illusion" that keeps her going until she is ready to drop; nothing less could command such heroic marshalling of energy, such expenditure of resources. Without it, she is merely a "dutiful" — and eventually a resentful — parent.

The same is true, to a somewhat lesser degree, in marriage. A marriage without love may seem stable and placid, but it can rarely rise to a crisis — it is too easily knocked off its course by emotional currents from the outside. Without love, more duty cannot long resist the blandishments of pleasure.

So that love is not a sentimental fancy, or an attractive ornament on the social body, but a cohesive force compelling men and women to take care of each other with a resoluteness that cannot be achieved by any artificial means. The illusion keeps us going — but nothing except this illusion can lead us to the reality of spiritual satisfaction.

Bubbly Bash Triggers Ship Crash

BELFAST (UPI) — Officials beamed and thousands cheered Wednesday when the 191,250-ton tanker Myrina, largest ship ever built in Europe, slid down the launching ways.

But the smiles turned to frowns and the cheers to groans as the tanker kept right on sliding across the water and crashed into an island.

Flags and bunting waved bravely in the breeze when Lady Erkin smashed the traditional bottle of champagne against the hull of the giant oil tanker.

The ship slipped down the way, gained speed, rocketed into the water in a gigantic spray of foam and continued unchecked toward the opposite shore of Queen's Island.

The $15,000,000 vessel crashed through floating wooden rafts, sliced a rowboat neatly in two and then ground to a halt against an embankment on the island.

When embarrassed officials finally sorted the mess, it turned out the lines to tugboats, which were supposed to check the Myrina, had become fouled. The tanker, built for Deutsche Shell by Harland and Wolff, suffered only a few scratches and dents.

Willpower Credited With Saving Miner

Sprinkling Curbs Eased Off

Rain Tuesday evening plus a general easing off of water consumption has made it possible to ease lawn sprinkling restrictions, water commissioner Ronald Upward said Wednesday.

New hours for garden watering are from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. and from 6 p.m. to 11 p.m. Odd-numbered houses still water on odd-numbered days and even-numbered houses on even-numbered days. The old hours were 8 a.m. to noon and 2 p.m. to midnight.

CHONGYANG, South Korea (AP) — Rescue workers Wednesday brought to the surface a 35-year-old Korean gold miner who had been trapped 410 feet underground more than two weeks.

Doctors said Kim Chang-sun was in fair condition.

Doctors described Kim as a "man of unusually strong will" and said it was largely his willpower that had kept him alive during the 15 days he had spent alone in the mine.

The miner, a veteran of the Korean War, drank water and ate wood bark he found in the mine. Fellow workers brought him up in a mine lift.

Rescue was delayed when diggers struggled to clear the debris from a cave-in at the Kuband gold mine Aug. 23 encountered falling rocks, earth and pieces of mine pillars. Among the last obstacle was a five-ton boulder they had to bypass.

John D Calls the Shots

They Still Call Him 'Chief'

By RICHARD JACKSON
TORONTO — John Diefenbaker is measuring support while an impatient Conservative convention waits out the long day in hope — if not real expectation — that tonight he will give it some sign on the leadership. (see also Page 18)

But the word from inside the royal suite where he broods in closely-guarded privacy at the top of the Royal York, still is that he will keep the convention guessing.

Perhaps until just before nominations close Friday, or maybe even up to the hour of Saturday's voting.

So in his speech tonight, which he said Wednesday would be directed to both the party "and the nation," intimates don't expect him to declare himself on the leadership.

Except to indicate in hard, uncompromising terms what kind of a party he believes it should be... fighting "to the bitter end" the two-nations concept.

And then, as he has said publicly already, "leave it to the delegates to decide" — that is, on what kind of a man they think should lead it.

He actually doesn't have to declare himself, for astoundingly, he still appears to be in control. There may be wheeling and dealing in the back rooms, and the party's panhandlers may be making all manner of power pacts — but to all outward appearances "The Chief," as they all still call him, seems himself to be calling an awful lot of the shots.

Ford Goes Out

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers union struck Ford Motor Co. at midnight Wednesday night in a contract dispute that could make idle 159,000 workers in 25 states.

The walkout, first at Ford since 1961 when the UAW struck for 14 days, came at the expiry of a three-year contract and followed rejection by the company of an 11th-hour union proposal to let a third party set the wage terms of a new agreement.

REASONS LISTED

Chief Ford negotiator Malcolm L. Denise labelled the proposal "clearly unacceptable." In a letter delivered to the UAW bargaining team at 11:30 p.m., he cited six reasons, including rejection of union demands for profit and productivity figures. Even if the company had accepted UAW President Walter P. Reuther's proposal for binding arbitration after seven hours of study, the move would have come too late to avoid extensive strikes in the eastern time zones.

ALREADY OUT

Thousands of workers already had walked off the job in anticipation of the nationwide strike. The midnight deadline usually means Detroit time and close-down of Ford plants across the U.S. was not expected to be complete until midnight came in all time zones.

Although current contracts at General Motors Corp. and Chrysler Corp. also expired at midnight, they were expected to continue to operate.

NO TALKS

Denise told a post-midnight news conference no bargaining sessions are scheduled for today and that there probably wouldn't be any more this week.

Men immediately walked out of the vast River Rouge plant west of Detroit where Ford makes about 50 per cent of its own steel.

De Gaulle, President Ochab in Warsaw

De Gaulle Asks Polish Help To End War

WARSAW (AP) — French President de Gaulle, tumultuously welcomed on a six-day visit to Communist Poland, declared Wednesday night the French and Poles may help together to put an end "to the bombing, the fighting and the presence of foreign forces in Vietnam."

The 76-year-old de Gaulle, a persistent critic of U.S. policy in old French Indochina, spoke at a state reception after crowds totaling nearly 500,000 acclaimed him on his arrival and in a 45-minute motorcade from the airport into Warsaw.

De Gaulle said France and Poland could help in carrying out the Geneva agreement on Vietnam "so as to revive this region which is so horribly crushed."

THREE MEMBERS

Poland, Canada and India are members of the International Control Commission set up after the 1954 Geneva accords divided Vietnam into North and South following the ousting of the French.

Two Planes Missing

VANCOUVER (CP) — A search was launched late Wednesday night for a B.C. Airlines Cessna 185 overdue at Sandspit, Queen Charlotte Islands.

In another incident, a Piper Cub two-engine plane, belonging to Skyways Air Services, Abbotsford, was reported missing after practising landings at Pitt Lake.

Mica Dam Contract 'Canada's Largest'

VANCOUVER (CP) — A $136,261,544 contract for construction of Mica Dam on the Columbia River system was awarded Wednesday to a five-company group headed by an American firm.

B.C. Hydro, in charge of the multi-million-dollar project under a Canada-U.S. treaty, described it the largest single contract ever awarded in Canada.

The consortium is headed by Guy F. Atkinson Co. of San Francisco and includes the Arundel Corp. of Baltimore, L. E. Dixon Co. of San Gabriel, Calif., Dillingham Corp. of Canada Ltd. of Vancouver and Commonwealth Construction Co. of Vancouver.

Mica is the last and largest of the three Canadian storage dams on the Columbia system. The contract awarded Wednesday does not include the underground powerhouse which will generate 2,900,000 kilowatts of electric power for B.C.

The Atkinson Consortium bid was the lowest of four opened by Hydro Aug. 30. An all-Canadian consortium submitted a tender of $149,535,513, slightly above $143,335,880 by another Canadian-American group. The highest was $179,814,486.

Hydro said construction of the Mica Dam, 85 miles north of Revelstoke, will begin later this year following diversion of the Columbia River, probably about November.

At Least 20 Dead In Arab Fighting

ADEN (Reuters) — At least 20 persons have been killed in heavy fighting during the last three days between the two rival extremist Arab nationalist groups in South Arabia.

Montreal Mob Scene

Greeks Denounce Visiting Monarch

MONTREAL (CP) — Thousands of Montrealers of Greek origin, shouting "Down with the king" and "The king must go," milled around the downtown Chateau Champlain hotel Wednesday night.

Inside the building were King Constantine and Queen Anne-Marie of Greece, who earlier in the day received a cordial welcome from crowds at Expo 67 when they took part in Greece's national day ceremonies.

PARK STAFF

The demonstrators — estimated by police and organizers to number about 5,000 — marched to the hotel along the main arteries of Park Avenue and Dorchester Boulevard from their gathering point in a park on the east flank of Mount Royal.

Leading the parade were marchers carrying the Canadian maple leaf flag, the Quebec fleur-de-lis and the blue-and-white Greek flag.

IRON CREDS

Also carried along above the throng was a large Canadian caricature of the king, with an iron cross symbol drawn on his crown and a dollar sign in his hand.

Meanwhile, in front of the nearby Windsor hotel, another group of about 300 Greeks demonstrated quietly in support of the royal couple.

Romney Repeats Brainwash Charge

By ROBERT J. DONOVAN
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Michigan Gov. George Romney was embroiled in a wide-ranging political flap Wednesday over his statement that he was subjected to "brainwashing" by U.S. officials on a 1965 trip to Vietnam.

Instead of retreating under a hail of Democratic fire, the Republican presidential contender lambasted the Johnson administration with new charges of giving Americans inaccurate information about the war.

In one of the bluntest attacks he has made on the administration over Vietnam, Romney told reporters here: "If you want to get into a discussion of who's brainwashing whom, I suggest you take a look at what the administration has been telling the American people. The information has not been accurate."

Democrats vied with each other in denouncing Romney, with the sharpest thrust coming from Vermont's Gov. Philip H. Hoff, one of eight other governors accompanying Romney on the 1965 trip. "It is outrageous," Hoff told reporters in Washington, "that he would lead us to believe he was that naive or that he was brainwashed... to say he hasn't enough ability to make a judgment on his own as a presidential contender. It's the old McCarthy tactic of guilt by innuendo. I think it's kind of stupid."

A number of governors who made the trip with Romney, including GOP Gov. John Chafee of Rhode Island and some other Republicans agreed they were not brainwashed. Chafee told the Associated Press he found the briefing he received "interesting, constructive and helpful."

Step by step, this is how the uproar developed:

On Monday, Romney, while criticizing U.S. involvement in Vietnam as unnecessary, said in a pre-recorded broadcast in Detroit: "When I came back from Vietnam I had just had the greatest brainwashing that anyone can get when you go over to Vietnam."

When Romney returned from the Vietnam trip, he made a statement to the effect that the United States was morally right to be in Vietnam.

On Wednesday morning Democratic national chairman John M. Bailey remembered that another leading Republican, Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., was the U.S. ambassador in Vietnam at the time Romney

Whooper Silences Guns

REGINA (CP) — The air is quiet around the north end of Last Mountain Lake 70 miles north of here — with the exception of the birds.

The presence of one bird silenced the guns of several hundred hunters who had planned on taking advantage of the early sandhill crane season.

An estimated 25,000 sandhill cranes and an equal number of ducks, seemingly aware of their safety, swirled through the air Wednesday with their guest — a whooping crane.

in the sandhill crane management area at the lake.

The area was closed to hunters Saturday. The usual nesting ground for whooping cranes is nearly 1,000 miles northwest of here in Wood Buffalo National Park which lies on the Alberta-Northwest Territories border.

Horne Lake?

'Albernis Need Escape Route'

PORT ALBERNI—The recent Taylor Arm forest fire points to the need for another route out of the Albernis Valley, Horne Lake Trail Boosters feel.

"If this fire had broken out in the Cathedral Grove area or around Cameron Lake, we could have been isolated for quite a long time," committee chairman George McKnight said.

To publicize the need of a second exit from the Valley, the committee has taken a booth at the Fall Fair.

"More and more people have been travelling into Horne Lake in the past year and are amazed to realize the short road that is required, and the wonderful asset it would be to the Albernis Valley to have easy access to the east coast of the Island," the committee claims.

"The recreational value and the beauty of the Horne Lake area is an eye-opener, even to

Bustle Is Over

COURTENAY — The familiar sights, sounds and smells of the fair have all gone for another year. Children have returned to school and the normal pattern of life has resumed.

In the Courtenay Valley, four days of fun and festivities brought out a record number of people to see the annual Exhibition.

One of the new attractions, a baby contest, saw 51 children entered in two age classes.

BABY CONTEST

Winners were baby Shaun MacLennan, Colleen Swampy, Graham Milne and Vincent Cook. The judges found picking a winner extremely hard, they said.

A pet show was another special attraction but failed to draw as many participants as expected.

ENTERTAINMENT

Entertainment in many exhibition classes were up on last year's especially in poultry and rabbit divisions.

Homecraft entries were also popular and photography exhibits also jumped.

Loggers' sports, the horse show and rodeo, which was a B.C. sanction event, drew crowds which packed the stands.

DOG DANCE

At night, the Jane Ault Show, Hello Follies, also drew a packed house. Her show was presided by a dance presentation by the Joy Woodrow School, the Centennial Choir and a dog obedience display.

At the close of the fair on Monday night, several draws were made with the big prizes being a car, a pony and a boat, motor and trailer unit. All prizes went to local residents.

COURTENAY — Local centennial committee chairman Mrs. Myrtle Vickberg has received a cheque for $1,200,000 from a cross-Canada Centennial Helicopter official, which she accepted on behalf of the city. She said she would give it to the city at the next council meeting with a proposal to the way it could be spent. However, the cheque is valueless — it is a replica of the one paid to Russia by the U.S. for Alaska. She was also presented with other small gifts.

MESACHIE LAKE — Head millwright at Mesachie Lake, Alexander Jack Jr., has been buried at Cedar Valley Memorial Gardens. He died Saturday in King's Daughters' Hospital, Duncan, aged 54. Born and educated in Esquimalt, he came to Duncan 40 years ago to work at Old Hillcrest.

COURTENAY — Logging crews in the Courtenay Valley returned to work Tuesday after a month-long layoff caused by fire hazards. With the lifting of forest closures, Vanwest and Crown Zellerbach both reported their crews back on the job. The Alberni Valley has also resumed logging operations.

NANAIMO — S. R. Kirkland Ltd. of Nanaimo has been awarded a federal government contract for breakwater renewal at Northwest Bay, at a cost of $22,895. Pacific Piledriving Co. of Victoria is also included in the latest Ottawa list of contract awards. The company's $23,790 tender for float renewal at Qualicum has been accepted.

NANAIMO — Patrick Robert Boulet, 23, 1117 Hamilton, New Westminster, pleaded guilty to impaired driving, in magistrates court Tuesday. He was reported by B.C. Ferry personnel when he hit a wire fence three times, while trying to park on Monday. A blood

Indians Do Well In Garden Show

DUNCAN — Cowichan Indians, who are beautifying their homes and gardens, entered a recent garden contest.

The Cowichan Homemakers' Club sponsored this event, the first and similar contests will be held next spring and fall.

Club secretary Mrs. Mary Thorne introduced the contest. Judges were John Nesbitt and Betty McKinnon. Former headmistress of Queen Margaret's School, Miss Norah Denny, will present prizes to the winners this Saturday during the 100th Cowichan Fall Fair.

The garden of band councillor George Daniels of Chemainus-Alut, won first prize with Joe Elliott of Somers second, and George Modeste of Koksilah third.

Three other Indian families who drew honorable mentions for their efforts were Mr. and Mrs. Ben George of Somers, Mrs. and Mrs. Ed Elliott and Mr. and Mrs. Ron Charlie, of Quamichan and Willy George of Somers.

Mrs. Thorne said "Many places we saw were to be highly commended. The grounds were neat and attractive and showed much effort had been made."

"It is hoped all the contestants and many more will undertake this most worthwhile project of improving their homes and gardens."

The visitors' party included Chief and Mrs. Dennis Alphonse, Mrs. Shirley Thomas, Mrs. Mary Thorne, Mrs. Ruby Peter, Mrs. F. Rowland and Mrs. Elsie Bob. The group discussed the new adult education program now offered by the Cowichan Band, their many problems such as poor homes built and handed over to them as empty shells with no kitchen cupboards, no plumbing, no inside doors and no mortgage money available on reserve property and on way of raising the extra $6,000 needed to bring the homes up to decent standards.

alcohol reading showed he had .17 per cent content. He was fined $275, and prohibited from driving for six months.

NANAIMO — Centennial Helicopter pilot Frank Ogden hopes to land here Sept. 12. He originally planned to end his cross-Canada flight with a stop here Aug. 31, and at Wickaninnish last Friday. The flight has been delayed by engine trouble.

SHAWNIGAN LAKE — A Victoria woman is reported in satisfactory condition in King's Daughters' Hospital following a car accident Tuesday on Trans-Canada Highway 10 miles south of Duncan. Mrs. Alvin W. Hewson, 2740 Fifth Street was a passenger in a station sedan which left the road and smashed into a ditch. Her husband escaped injury.

COURTENAY — Last month was the driest on record in the Courtenay Valley. It was also the hottest, a record was established with a 90 degree reading in mid-August. But the heat and drought was broken on the 31st when almost half an inch of rain fell. Heavier falls are still needed.

SHAWNIGAN LAKE — Calvin Paul Phillips, 18, Duncan, was fined $50 Wednesday and had his license suspended for three months after he was convicted of having driven a motorcycle without due care and attention. The motorcycle he was riding July 24 went off the Cobble Hill Road and Phillips broke his nose.

COURTENAY — There is a marked decrease in the number of tourists stopping at the Tourist Bureau this year. Last year, an abnormally heavy one from the tourist angle, 5,151 cars stopped to make inquiries. This year about 1,000 less have stopped.

DUNCAN — Private cremation services have been held here for former Ferrie Hospital board member Andrew Whyte Lees, who died at King's Daughters' hospital Aug. 30.

Swimming Pool
In Park Plan

By KLAUS MUENTEE

NORTH COWICHAN — A swimming pool may be built at Pioneer Park early next year, as a joint venture between North Cowichan and the City of Duncan.

North Cowichan council Wednesday afternoon approved in principle a resolution submitted by municipal and city recreation commissions.

The commissions met Tuesday night.

Coun. Dennis Hogan, who is chairman of the North Cowichan Recreation Commission, told council the commissions suggested the December municipal elections as voting date for a swimming pool bylaw.

Duncan council is expected to make a decision when it meets next week.

Communication Lack May Kill College

COURTENAY—The big Parkville seminar designed to provide information on the proposed regional college was a failure as far as city council here is concerned.

It did not convince officials their area should support the venture.

Mayor George Hobson said "Several questions remain to be answered."

Ald. Harry Harris said the seminar only provided "one-way communication."

There will be a vote on the college issue in about three weeks.

The mayor said he "has not formed any opinion" on the college question, although he attended the conference.

Ald. Harris was the city's representative on the college advisory committee.

He claimed there was no opportunity for disagreement at the forum, since all questions were written down.

He expressed the opinion that any future meetings must provide this opportunity.

He told council while he is in favor of the general concept of the regional college, there must be more research into the matter, and there must be something wrong in B.C.

He pointed out Castlegar has a problem... the five top men left their posts.

In the Courtenay, Ald. Harris said, the residents voted yes on the first vote and no on the second. In the meantime certain staff had been hired and now there are no funds with which to pay them.

Ald. Bill Bell, referring to the seminar, said the speakers were educators pushing for a college.

In the opinion of Ald. Geoff Browning, the government might be looking for a way to fold the cost of higher education on the homeowner.

Ald. Harris outlined a college system in force in Washington which is financed 100 per cent by the government both for capital and operating costs.

"I feel this matter hasn't been planned well enough on a provincial basis, and this may be the reason why it is being rejected elsewhere," he stated.

Later after suggesting council appoint someone else in his place to serve on the committee, he added "As a member of the advisory committee I do not feel I can go out and promote this."

The mayor told Ald. Harris he had done what council had asked of him, and said he would be very reluctant to replace him on the advisory committee.

School Trustee Brian Walker has expressed concern that the college vote Sept. 30 may be dominated by the apathetic attitude of voters.

School board treasurer Roy Mills said "The people against it will get out and vote and those strongly in favor will vote, but it is the group between we must worry about."

Only 19 people have registered to vote as tenant or resident electors and Mr. Mills indicated this is one form of apathy.

Two local groups have already expressed opposition to the regional college proposal.

Several months ago Electors' Association advised the school board it would not support the plebiscite and would actively oppose it.

Adult education director W. G. Tippet said, "Inquiries from adults who wish to complete high school, or continue their education, is increasing year by year."

ONLY A COLLEGE
"Only a regional college can offer the variety of programs to enable these adults to gain a full or satisfactory standing."

From Monday to Friday, the adult education department offers 99 courses.

"We're limited by teaching staff alone," Mr. Tippet added.

HAS NO BAY
He referred to Vancouver City College, which is a regional college in all aspects except that it is financed by only one district.

"Their offerings (of courses) are not restricted by the Department of Education," Mr. Tippet explained.

"They can offer psychology, philosophy and economics," he added.

"They can offer education on a full-time basis, while night school only functions in the evenings."

Student Needs
Not Being Met

By ARNOLD OLSON

NANAIMO — With the beginning of the school term, the need for a regional college has presented itself.

Nanaimo senior high principal J. W. Swan said Wednesday some students are forced into taking academic courses, when they might prefer taking non-academic courses, such as:

Shop courses, leading to industrial employment; commerce courses, leading to a place in the business world; technical courses, leading to laboratory technicians in either pulp mills, or hospitals; or art and drama which could lead to advertising or television employment.

VALENTY WANTED?
Instead, the student must take academic courses to get the Grade 12 diploma leading to University entrance, which he does not really want.

A regional college could provide courses designed to the needs of the students of the Island, thereby allowing students as low as Grade 9 to fit their educational life to their own needs, rather than those of a university.

REGULATIONS
They must bend to the Department of Education regulations for University entrance, in order to get the high school diploma.

"You can't get a job with it, but you can't get a good job without it," said Mr. Swan, referring to the fact that at present, the diploma allows the student to enter into high educational facilities for jobs of their choice.

FREE-GRADUATION
With the regional college, many of the courses could be undertaken before graduation, and the student could enter the college with a higher degree to training.

In some cases, students who have not qualified for the diploma, could still enter college, and pick up the subjects they are short, while increasing their education in other fields.

ADULTS TOO
Now, however, the student must mark time in high schools, while those "short subjects" are picked up.

Adults too would benefit. Married men who could increase or upgrade their education, on a full time basis, supported by savings, or their working wives cannot afford to move to universities.

The regional college could allow them to live at home, and get the education they need or want.

THOUSANDS
The thousands of adult education students in the proposed college district (the nine school districts north of the Malahat) would benefit from the college facilities.

Many would not have to travel to the high schools, but rather the college instructors could travel to the students, wherever an area shows the need.

Adult education director W. G. Tippet said, "Inquiries from adults who wish to complete high school, or continue their education, is increasing year by year."

ONLY A COLLEGE
"Only a regional college can offer the variety of programs to enable these adults to gain a full or satisfactory standing."

From Monday to Friday, the adult education department offers 99 courses.

"We're limited by teaching staff alone," Mr. Tippet added.

HAS NO BAY
He referred to Vancouver City College, which is a regional college in all aspects except that it is financed by only one district.

"Their offerings (of courses) are not restricted by the Department of Education," Mr. Tippet explained.

"They can offer psychology, philosophy and economics," he added.

"They can offer education on a full-time basis, while night school only functions in the evenings."

"Some people over the years have worked hard, given much of their time, and lost money," he said.

Mrs. Ford disagreed.

Williston

Hospital System Pushed

LAKE COWICHAN — All regional hospital districts will be incorporated before the end of 1967.

Lands Minister Ray Williston has advised the Lake Cowichan Hospital Improvement District by letter that this is his expectation.

Trustees learned that hospital improvement districts will be phased out. New regional hospital districts will provide funds for hospital projects and repay outstanding debenture debts.

Mr. Williston thanked the district trustees for valuable service contributed in the past, and in the future.

Meanwhile, trustees have decided to give more publicity to their meetings.

Mollie Scott of Chemainus is in satisfactory condition at Chemainus Hospital with a broken leg, fractured kneecap and bruises suffered when the car she was driving on Crofton Road Monday night struck a telephone pole.

Dr. Ross Jensen is back at work in Nanaimo after whistling farewell to handicapped children at a special summer camp at Shawinigan Lake.

Mrs. Jensen and her daughter Jennifer and Elizabeth have returned to Tofino after visiting relatives in Scotland and England for a month.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Brady and family have visited many friends in the Long Beach, Udonet and Tofino areas. They are from Whitehorse, Yukon.

'Ridiculous'

Pioneer Plan
Blasted

NORTH COWICHAN — "I think this is ridiculous," charged Coun. Gerry Smith when confronted with the proposal to spend $5,400 on a Pioneer Park development plan.

He made the comment as member of the North Cowichan Recreation Commission, which met with the Duncan recreation commission.

"We cannot move the tennis courts, nor can we move the baseball grandstand."

"This park is already half developed and we would pay $5,400 for nothing."

The study would include site mapping, physical examination, present and future use, land acquisition, the Cowichan Exhibition grounds and a park development plan.

Duncan Commission Chairman Ronald Price agreed with Coun. Smith in principle, but suggested a professional plan as to the location of a proposed recreational complex.

North Cowichan Commissioner Gordon Cameron cautioned "maybe the $5,400 is not the best investment at this time, but we should look at it very closely before turning it down."

City Commissioner Gary Griffith said part of the money should be used for soil tests to determine the best location for a swimming pool and the rest of the money should be used for something else.

Finally the two commissions agreed to ask engineers from planners A.B. Sanderson explain their proposal regarding the proposed Pioneer Park study.

The Cowichan School Board will be asked to carry part of the Pioneer Park maintenance expenditure by assisting with the grass cutting.

Coun. Smith said the grass cutting costs about $2,000 a year at $100 a cutting.

Nanaimo
Cyclist Injured

Motorcyclist Edward Dye of Wellington is in satisfactory condition in Nanaimo Regional Hospital suffering a broken ankle and arm received in a collision with a car driven by William Adams, Wednesday at Howard and Third Avenue.

A motor vehicle accident near Kelsey Bay sent Murray Larson, Port St. John, to hospital with head injuries after his car slammed into a bluff at the Alert Bay ferry slip.

He said attempts will be made to formulate a plan and discuss it at a public meeting.

Regarding a 30-day extension request for the local improvement initiative plan for a sewer system in the south end of the municipality, the reeve noted "there is no intention of proceeding in 30 days if a more satisfactory method can be found."

Something
Fishy

This 30-pound tyne is destined for the marketplace in the living room, not the stove in the kitchen. Caught by Brenda Chapple of Toronto, and pulled in by brothers Brad, left, and Brooke, the salmon is the first they have seen so close. The youngsters are the children of Dr. and Mrs. Don Chapple, who said they would rather mount it (at a cost of $100) than eat it. The family have been staying at Nahmint Bay on the Alberni Canal.

Government Approves
Lake Cowichan Plan

LAKE COWICHAN — An elementary school in this district will almost double in size, as a result of an Education Department ruling.

The department has approved a big addition to J. H. Boyd Elementary School.

Tenders have been called, and bids will be examined Sept. 27. Cost of the addition has been estimated at $110,000, twice the cost of the original school.

Rebuilt Fully

The school was completely rebuilt last year after being razed by fire.

The addition will include one classroom, a library, kindergarten room, activity room, kitchen, administration wing and covered play area.

A. C. Roole of Lake Cowichan was awarded the tender for the site clearance of about seven acres of land set aside for the future South Shore Primary School.

Mr. Roole's price was $2,100.

Two Crossings

The seven acres are located east of the 100 houses development in Lake Cowichan.

Plans for the site include the building of two crossings over the C.M.R. tracks which run through the property.

Trustees were pleased to note that the railway company had no objections to the crossings.

Trustees had recently applied for a tax rebate on fuel for use of school buses on private roads.

The department also stated "The legislation has been fit to encourage certain basic industries by specific instruction to except types of vehicles under specific conditions.

"Unfortunately, these conditions do not apply in the situation under discussion."

Board Chairman Don Hammond reported that two portable classrooms which the board recently purchased have been set up at the J. H. Boyd.

He said "We also have one rented portable classroom at the Gladys Lucas home."

Rooms Useful

The board has found these portables extremely useful as they are self-contained classrooms at a cost of $12,000.

All Lake Cowichan organizations and clubs have been contacted, and trustees have offered to supply speakers at their forthcoming meetings to answer questions on the proposal.

Trustee Bill Beckingham said "That might be fine and dandy for us this year," new Trustee Ron Cooll retorted.

"But it is unfair to set a precedent. We should either accept it or reject it. You would be creating a situation where someone joining the board could be put in a very embarrassing position."

"Trustees can always accept it and then do what they wish with it, quietly and privately. It is not fair to say that accepting the allowable indemnity is greed," Trustee Cooll added.

A motion by Mrs. Ford to discuss the matter in committee was defeated.

The matter of expenditure of public funds should be public knowledge, other trustees said.

Trustee Bill Beckingham saw the decision as an uncoloured matter. Provision had been made in the school act to pay trustees a sum limited by the enrollment of pupils in the district.

Mrs. Ford disagreed.

Trustees Accept Cash

PORT ALBERNI — The school board here has rejected a strong plea that trustees turn down the $700 payment they collect for being board members.

Trustee Jack Whitall said the board members could "take a unique place in B.C. by refusing the money."

Trustee Helen Ford also objected to accepting the payment.

But these trustees were outvoted by the majority of the board.

"I oppose this ideally as an excellent opportunity to resist temptation," Trustee Whitall said. "I note with dismay that most boards, almost before the ink was dry, grabbed the bundle."

"I shall try not to be brutal, but there seems to be a common trait of greed."

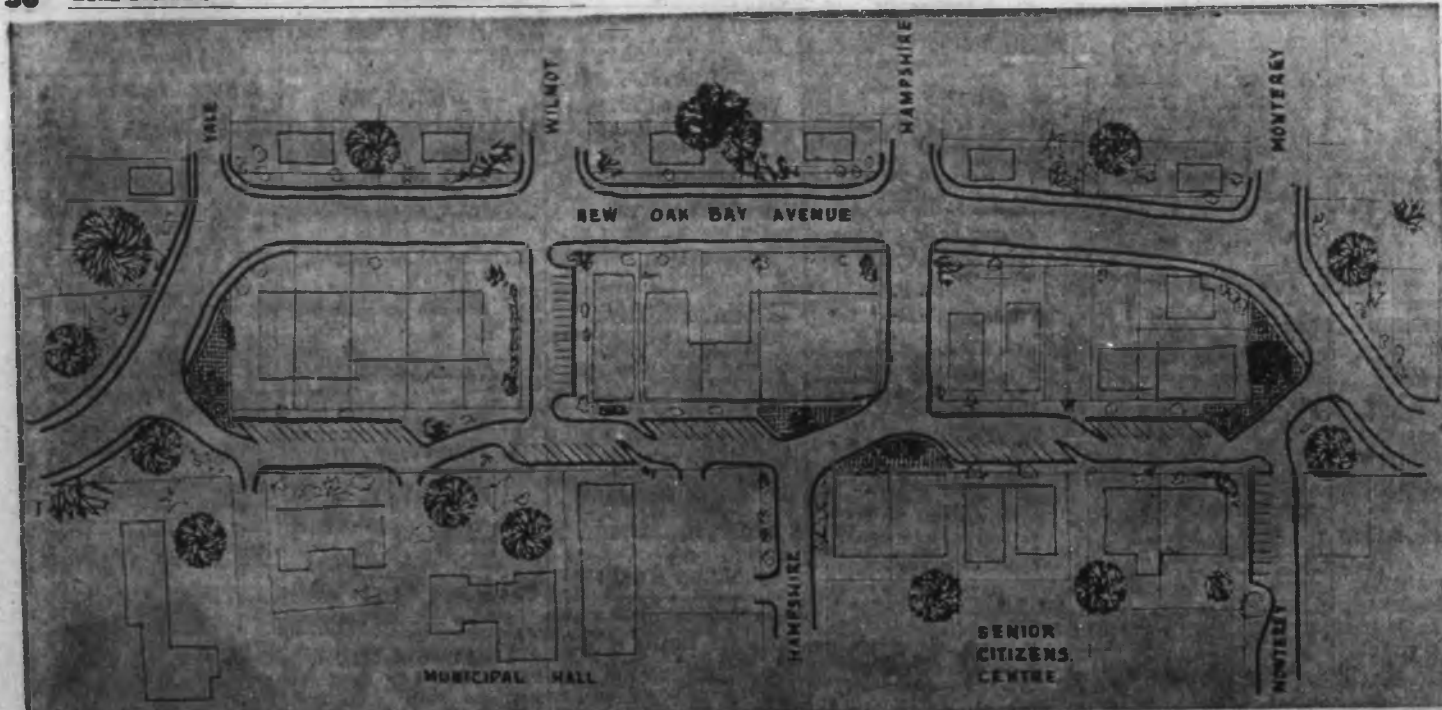

"I suggest you all come with me and Mrs. Ford and take the money and do something good for the community with it."

Rerouting of Oak Bay Avenue would develop this large but cosy shopping 'village'

Planners Think Big

Build Personality Oak Bay Urged

By JOHN MATTERS

Oak Bay should spend $2,440,000 during the next 15 years mainly enriching its natural attributes, the Capital Region Planning Board suggested in a report Tuesday night.

The plan proposes a network of leisure paths connecting parks, more space for seaside strolling, shopping districts where residents can peacefully perambulate, more apartments and rejuvenated family dwellings.

Top priority items — they come to $1,348,500 — include development of six park areas, extension of Haro Road, a $500,000 recreation centre on Foul Bay Road and $140,000 worth of greenways, coastal paths and promenades.

NATURAL THINGS
"Oak Bay's success and popularity as a place to live is founded on the natural attractions of trees, rocks, bays and headlands — the combined appeal of land and sea," says the report.

"The preservation of the best examples of this natural heritage should form one of the main components of open space policy."

WIDE CIRCULATION
After hearing A. H. Roberts, the planning board's director, councillors decided the report should be given as wide a circulation as possible.

Reeve Alan Cox said that, while council hadn't discussed the proposals, it's unlikely any of the items needing money would be designed to the stage that they could be included in a referendum this December.

FOOTPATH SYSTEM
One of the prime recommendations is a system of footpaths that would provide a continuous pedestrian way throughout the municipality.

No home would be more than half a mile from such a path, and the system "can be accepted as a unique skeleton upon which the whole residential structure can rest."

ONE REASON
The planners said one reason for suggesting this type of recreation facility is the fact Oak Bay has a predominantly elderly population, which prefers parks with walks, gardens and views.

They also pointed out no part of Oak Bay is more than two miles from the sea. Three of the eight miles of sea frontage are open to the public year-round by way of streets to parks.

To take full advantage of these potentials, Oak Bay should avoid and reduce sea pollution and acquire as much seaside space as possible. However, this has its limits because, at present prices, all private property on the beach would be worth about $10,000,000.

The Capital Region Planning Board also suggests the municipality develop a single park which is a showpiece, not necessarily large or costly, but distinctive.

The board also says council should adopt a policy which would encourage owners of older homes to improve their dwellings. Two improvement areas could be set up, and council could have prepared booklets describing how renovations could be made.

VILLAGE PROJECT
The report suggests a $335,000 revitalization of Oak Bay village, the largest shopping area in the municipality.

It would involve moving Oak Bay Avenue north, turning the present Oak Bay Avenue into a pedestrian mall between Yale and Monterey. There would be an apartment cluster to the north and a home improvement area to the south.

NEW SHOPS
Features of the new Oak Bay Village would be shops with distinctively designed entrances, small greens and "conversation corners," underground wiring and free crossing at all points for pedestrians.

However, this will need better access to the north — possibly extension of Cadboro Bay Road to link with Hampshire — and a new loop road to the north.

CAPITAL BUDGET
"Although Oak Bay will have a continuous call upon its resources for street maintenance and improvement, it will not be faced with major transportation problems in the near future," says the report.

The planners suggest their recommendations could be implemented by taking a capital budget to the ratepayers.

Planners Say So

It IS the Land Of Tea, Tweeds

All those things they say about Oak Bay are true.

The Capital Region Planning Board's report on the long-range needs of the municipality, released Tuesday night, confirms Oak Bay indeed is the land of tea and tweeds.

As the planners put it: "It is a stable and affluent community... with a distinct blend of attitudes and values."

Its population, 88 per cent of which is of British origin, has three times the national average of elderly. The report says 21 per cent of Oak Bay's citizens are more than 65 years old.

Oak Bay residents have the highest level of education of all Greater Victoria municipalities, and the highest wage median and salaries. Of the employed persons, 40 per cent were in the professional and managerial classifications.

However, the community will have to depend on migrants for growth, because deaths exceed births.

During the last five years, there has been an average of 81 more deaths than births per year.

"In relation to the region, the homes have the largest number of rooms and they are largely owner-occupied," says the report, which adds only one-third of the homeowners have mortgages.

There were 5,600 employed people but only 800 — or one in seven — actually worked within Oak Bay's boundaries. The remainder had jobs elsewhere in the Greater Victoria area.

Widening of Marine Could Be Offensive

Widening Marine Drive to four lanes would create an offensive speedway through Oak Bay, the Capital Region Planning Board said Tuesday night.

"A faster, six-lane highway would disturb many of the amenities which the recreational motorist and resident enjoy," says the report presented to municipal council.

While there may be congestion on Marine Drive now during Sundays and holidays, it lasts for only a few hours. A wider highway would attract more drivers.

The planners also suggest that, in both public and private developments, every effort be made to preserve trees and the natural landscape.

"When possible, electrical and telephone services should be underground and if overhead routes are unavoidable, a minimum of tree-pruning should be done," says the report.

Thunder Visits Victoria

A noisy electrical storm passed near Victoria at 9:15 p.m. Tuesday, accompanied by gusty winds and about one-fifth of an inch of rain.

The weather office did not expect a recurrence today, when clouds and some showers are likely in the morning, followed by sunny periods in the afternoon. More showers are due Thursday.

Hospitals Treat 153 Victims

St. Joseph's and Royal Jubilee Hospitals last month treated 153 victims of traffic accidents.

They were among 4,834 people who were seen at the emergency wards of both hospitals — 2,749 at Royal Jubilee and 2,085 at St. Joseph's.

The emergency admissions to St. Joseph's were 124 more than during August, 1966, while Royal Jubilee handled 242 more emergency cases than it did during the same month last year.

Gordon Head Complaint

Rats Plague Resident

An angry Gordon Head resident refused to play piper for Seaside health authorities, council was told Tuesday night.

Gordon Webb, spokesman for a Wenman Drive delegation, said that open manure piles and horses kept on a seven-tenths of an acre property in his area was bringing rats into the district.

He said this was the first time he had seen rats near his home at 2374 Wenman, and when he had complained to municipal health authorities he was offered poison bait to kill off the pests. "I'm not inducing the rats so I don't see why I should have to go and fight them," he told council.

Mr. Webb said there were three horses on the property Tuesday morning where formerly there had been two.

"The introduction of the third horse was the final straw," he said.

Council acknowledged a petition from the area bearing 53 signatures objecting to the land with the horses being zoned for farming and residential.

Reeve Hugh Curtis told the delegation the property is to be discussed at a public hearing at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday and possibly will be rezoned to just residential.

However, he noted that rezoning a property cannot be made retroactive, and the land could still pasture horses under nonconforming use.

Stampeding Herd Needs Schooling

School safety patrols to deal with stampeding Esquimalt pedestrians who "flagrantly disregard all signs and signals" were recommended by Coun. William Bell at Monday's traffic committee meeting.

He made the recommendation after hearing municipal engineer William Gerry, and Police Chief Earl Sarlat describe bottleneck traffic conditions on Canteen Road, as Yarrow and Dockyard workers leave.

EMERGENCY SIGNALS
Mr. Gerry said that at about 4:15 p.m. each day, large numbers of pedestrians, who apparently have a "couldn't care less" attitude toward traffic, are disgorged from Yarrow.

The stampeding pedestrians, he said, completely disregard all normal traffic signals, both in walking and driving.

"They ignore all signs and signals," he said, "and I don't know that the people are ready for any assistance or direction from us."

Jets Replacing Turbo-Props

CALGARY (CP)—Air Canada has announced DC-9 jets will replace Viscount turbo-prop aircraft on one flight each day from Calgary to Saskatoon, one to Regina and two to Vancouver. Viscounts hold 48 passengers and DC-9s 72 or, in a "stretched" version, 96.

same time that cars and pedestrians are leaving Yarrow.

Coun. Bell said cars from the Chief Petty Officers parking lot leave Naden at that time.

"LIKE HERD"
"They come out en masse from work, and go, just like a herd, across the road to the parking lot," said Chief Sarlat.

Coun. Bell asked if commissioners can be asked to form a "sort of school safety patrol" to shepherd workers across the road in groups.

They Still Call Him 'Chief'

By RICHARD JACKSON
TORONTO — John Diefenbaker is measuring support while an impatient Conservative convention waits out the long day in hope — if not real expectation — that tonight he will give it some sign on the leadership. (See also P. 16, 18) But the word from inside the royal suite where he broods in closely-guarded privacy at the top of the Royal York, still is that he will keep the convention guessing. * * *

Perhaps until just before nominations close Friday, or maybe even up to the hour of Saturday's voting. So in his speech tonight, which he said Wednesday would be directed to both the party "and the nation," intimates don't expect him to declare himself on the leadership. * * *

Except to indicate in hard, uncompromising terms what kind of a party he believes it should be... fighting "to the bitter end" the two-nations concept. And then, as he has said publicly already, "leave it to the delegates to decide". * * *

He actually doesn't have to declare himself, for astoundingly, he still appears to be in control. There may be wheeling and dealing in the back rooms, and the party's panjandrum may be making all manner of power pacts — but to all outward appearances "The Chief," as they still call him, seems himself to be calling an awful lot of the shots. * * *

Ford Goes Out

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers union struck Ford Motor Co. at midnight Wednesday night in a contract dispute that could make idle 159,000 workers in 25 states.

The walkout, first at Ford since 1961 when the UAW struck for 14 days, came at the expiry of a three-year contract and followed rejection by the company of an 11th-hour union proposal to let a third party set the wage terms of a new agreement.

REASONS LISTED

Chief Ford negotiator Malcolm L. Dennis labelled the proposal "clearly unacceptable." In a letter delivered to the UAW bargaining team at 11:30 p.m., he ticked off numerous reasons, including rejection of union demands for profit and productivity figures. Even if the company had accepted UAW President Walter P. Reuther's proposal for binding arbitration after seven hours of study, the move would have come too late to avoid extensive strikes in the eastern time zones.

ALREADY OUT

Thousands of workers already had walked off the job in anticipation of the nationwide strike. The midnight deadline usually means Detroit time and the shutdown of Ford plants across the U.S. was not expected to be complete until midnight came in all time zones.

Although current contracts at General Motors Corp. and Chrysler Corp. also expired at midnight, they were expected to continue to operate.

NO TALKS

Dennis told a post-midnight news conference no bargaining sessions are scheduled for today and that there probably wouldn't be any more this week.

Men immediately walked out of the vast River Rouge plant west of Detroit where Ford makes about 50 per cent of its own steel.

MAN DIES IN CRASH

A Victoria doctor was killed shortly before 1 a.m. today when his late-model sports car went out of control and sheared off a utility pole in the 3700 block Blenkinsop.

He was identified as Dr. W. Gerald Wallis of 1237 Tattersall.

The man, trapped in the wreckage, was pronounced dead at 1:05 a.m. by Dr. J. E. Paterson, whose home at 1200 Judge Place was near the accident scene. * * *

Electric wires which ripped loose when the car snapped off the pole, smacked across the car's body. Hydro workers were forced to cut power to nearby houses. * * *

Blenkinsop residents brought to the scene by the noise of the crash, stood in silent groups as Saanich police and firemen worked to free the car and driver from the weight of the pole and electric wires.

Peter Garrison of New York, visiting with friends on Blenkinsop, said it sounded like a bomb had gone off, and after that all that could be heard was the sound of the car's jammed horn which was finally disconnected by police. * * *

De Gaulle Asks Polish Help

WARSAW (AP) — French President de Gaulle, tumultuously welcomed on a six-day visit to Communist Poland, declared Wednesday night the French and Poles may help together to put an end "to the bombing, the fighting and the presence of foreign forces in Vietnam."

The 76-year-old de Gaulle, a persistent critic of U.S. policy in old French Indochina, spoke at a state reception after crowds totalling nearly 500,000 acclaimed him on his arrival in a 45-minute motorcade from the airport into Warsaw.

At the reception by Polish President Edward Ochab, de Gaulle repeated his support of the Geneva agreement on Vietnam "so as to revive this region which is so horribly crushed." * * *

At Least 20 Dead In Arab Fighting

ADEN (Reuters) — At least 20 persons have been killed in heavy fighting during the last three days between the two rival extremist Arab nationalist groups in South Arabia. Sources for the National Liberation Front (NLF) said Wednesday the battles were fought between it and the Front for the Liberation of Occupied South Yemen (FLOSY).

Tuesday, some Alaqa tribesmen of the South Arabian federal army were alleged to have joined forces with the Egyptian-backed FLOSY fighters attacking NLF units reported to be still in control of Dar Saad, a community of 14,000 inhabitants.

Mica Dam Contract 'Canada's Largest'

VANCOUVER (CP) — A $136,261,544 contract for construction of Mica Dam on the Columbia River system was awarded Wednesday to a five-company group headed by an American firm.

B.C. Hydro, in charge of the multi-million-dollar project under a Canada-U.S. treaty, described it the largest single contract ever awarded in Canada.

The consortium is headed by Guy F. Atkinson Co. of San Francisco and includes the Arundel Corp. of Baltimore, L. E. Dixon Co. of San Gabriel, Calif., Dillingham Corp. of Canada Ltd. of Vancouver and Commonwealth Construction Co. of Vancouver.

Mica is the last and largest of the three Canadian storage dams on the Columbia system. The contract awarded Wednesday does not include the underground powerhouse which will generate 2,000,000 kilowatts of electric power for B.C.

The Atkinson Consortium bid was the lowest of four opened by Hydro Aug. 30. An all-Canadian consortium submitted a tender of $149,535,513, slightly above $143,355,890 by another Canadian-American group. The highest was $170,814,466.

B.C. Starts Dirty Air Investigation

By IAN STREET
Legislative Reporter

A three-year study of air pollution problems throughout B.C. was launched Wednesday by the provincial government.

The Pollution Control Board, which will carry out the study, was given instructions to bring in recommendations for a solution to the problem by Oct. 1, 1970. (See also Page 8)

So that the study won't lag in the interim, said Resources Minister Ray Williston, the board must report progress to him at six-month intervals.

AT ANY TIME

The board has also been authorized to make specific proposals for anti-air-pollution measures at any time during the next three years, direct to the provincial cabinet.

Meanwhile, Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell announced that some of the funds earmarked for this purpose in the current budget would be used to develop air pollution control bylaws for the Alberni-Clayoquot regional district.

He said the size of the grant has yet to be determined, but it could be approximately $10,000 for a start.

RESEARCH, DEVELOPMENT

Estimates of the municipal affairs department contain a $200,000 item for research and development of air pollution control measures.

Mr. Campbell said similar grants would be available to any regional district in the province which made air pollution control a joint function. So far, in addition to Alberni, only Prince George is in this category.

Mr. Williston said the board is now able to hire consultants and make use of specialists in other provincial government departments in its full-scale study of the problem of air pollution.

ALBERNI VALLEY

"There will also be an opportunity," said Mr. Williston, "to co-ordinate some survey activities presently in progress and bring these to a conclusion: One project now being carried out by the health department concerns the effects of air pollution in the Alberni Valley."

The cabinet order, necessary to bring the Pollution Control Board into the field of air pollution under a wide new powers approved by the legislature last session, is another step in the government campaign to give B.C. clean air, water and soil.

Two Planes Missing

VANCOUVER (CP) — A search was launched late Wednesday night for a B.C. Airlines Cessna 185 overdue at Sandspit, Queen Charlotte Islands. Only the pilot, unidentified, was aboard.

In another incident, a Piper Cub float-equipped plane, belonging to Skyways Air Services, Abbotsford, was reported missing after practising landings at Pitt Lake.

They carried placards with pictures of the king and queen, and one marcher displayed a sign with the message: "The Greek army is the Greek people."

The anti-royalist demonstration at the Chateau Champlain was organized to protest against the overthrow of the Greek government by a military junta which now rules the country.

Whooper Silences Guns

REGINA (CP) — The air is quiet around the north end of Last Mountain Lake 70 miles north of here — with the exception of the birds.

The presence of one bird silenced the guns of several hundred hunters who had planned on taking advantage of the early sandhill crane season.

An estimated 25,000 sandhill cranes and an equal number of ducks, seemingly aware of their safety, swirled through the air Wednesday with their guest — a whooping crane.

Five days ago, the big white bird, an adult of undetermined sex which is one of about 50 left in the world, was spotted in the sandhill crane management area at the lake.

The area was closed to hunters Saturday. The usual nesting ground for whooping cranes is nearly 1,000 miles northwest of here in Wood Buffalo National Park which lies on the Alberta-Northwest Territories border.

Romney Repeats Brainwash Charge

By ROBERT J. DONOVAN
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Michigan Gov. George Romney was embroiled in a wide-ranging political flap Wednesday over his statement that he was subjected to "brainwashing" by U.S. officials on a 1965 trip to Vietnam.

Instead of retreating under a hail of Democratic fire, the Republican presidential contender lambasted the Johnson administration with new charges of giving Americans inaccurate information about the war.

In one of the bluntest attacks he has made on the administration over Vietnam, Romney told reporters here: "If you want to get into a discussion of who's brainwashing who, I suggest you take a look at what the administration has been telling the American people. The information has not been accurate."

Democrats vied with each other in denouncing Romney, with the sharpest thrust coming from Vermont's Gov. Philip H. Hoff, one of eight other governors accompanying Romney on the 1965 trip. "It is outrageous," Hoff told reporters in Washington, "that he would lead us to believe he was that naive or that he was brainwashed... to say he hasn't enough ability to make a judgment on his own as a presidential contender. It's the old McCarthy tactic of guilt by innuendo. I think it's kind of stinking."

A number of governors who made the trip with Romney, including GOP Gov. John Chafee of Rhode Island and some other Republicans agreed they were not brainwashed. Chafee told the Associated Press he found the briefing he received "interesting, constructive and helpful."

Step by step, this is how the uproar developed: On Monday, Romney, while criticizing U.S. involvement in Vietnam as unnecessary, said in a pre-recorded broadcast in Detroit: "When I came back from Vietnam I had just had the greatest brainwashing that anyone can get when you go over to Vietnam."

When Romney returned from the Vietnam trip, he made a statement to the effect that the United States was morally right to be in Vietnam.

On Wednesday morning Democratic national chairman John M. Bailey remembered that another leading Republican, Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., was the U.S. ambassador in Vietnam at the time Romney
